Shopping in Millions.
What Brokers Borrowed.
Not Lost, Misled.
Mussolini Thunders.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

High finance goes shopping, in these days of powerful credit and big industrial units, on a wholesale scale.

All records for "cash buying" were broken in the purchase of Associated Oil control for $165,000,000 cash. That's a sum equal to the great fortune of the Rothschilds—now small change for Ford or Rockefeller.

Gold, that brought the forty-niners to California, represents a small part of the state's wealth. Besides Associated Oil there are many California oil companies. If the right to "control," or a little more than half of one of them, is worth one hundred and sixty-five millions, how much must all of the oil of California be worth?

Investigating brokers' loans in New York shows $3,513,174,154 borrowed by the brokers to "carry" stocks for their customers on margin.

Three thousand five hundred and thirteen million dollars is a large sum. But it is small compared with this country's total wealth. The brokers' borrowing was used mainly by the bears in an effort to injure stock prices. The three and a half billions represent only 6 per cent of total stock values listed on the exchange.

This is no time to sell short in this country. Don't gamble. That always ends badly.

Lloyd George says: "The world is losing its ideals. Liberalism throughout the whole world has fallen on evil ways."

In Italy he saw newspaper suppressed, men elected, then thrown out of office by force, but, says he, the Italian people like it and prosper under it.

"Italy is prospering, mills and factories are throbbing with life, new works are springing up everywhere, old industries are reviving."

The world has often seemed to "lose its ideals" when it has only mislaid them, temporarily. A respectable gentleman in a rough and tumble fight, rolling into the gutter, loses his dignity as he straightens out his collar, packtie, etc.

But he is all right after awhile. The nations of Europe have been rolling in the gutter, cutting each other's throats. Now a reversion to Toryism and dictatorship is the order of the day. Nations and individuals all return gradually to old ways of thinking and living.

Mussolini, shaking his fist at Germany, tells the Italian parliament, "We are not afraid and won't budge an inch from our policy."

This threat refers to trouble about the Brenner pass in the Tyrol.

Mussolini says Italy's flag shall stay there, and, if necessary, he will carry it forward into German territory.

Italy's deputies, delighted, greeted Mussolini with thunders of applause and "Long live the duce."

Arrests Ordered

"We have merchants here who pay taxes and help support our city and for the next two years, at least, East Liverpool will be closed to peddlers," the mayor said. "I have issued orders to the police to arrest all persons who attempt to operate in a house-to-house business without a permit."

For the last several months, according to the mayor, this city has been overrun with peddlers and cripples who usually are found on sidewalks in the business district dealing in lead pencils, shoe strings, postcards and other merchandise.

"If I am asked for a permit by a cripple, who is unable to work for a livelihood, I offer to send him to the county infirmary if he is a resident of the county, but under no circumstances will I grant permits to beg on the streets," the mayor declared. "The bars have been down to this class of people here lately but henceforth there will be no stop-overs here."

Cites Two Typical Cases

A few weeks ago, an Alliance woman asked the mayor for a permit to solicit funds for a welfare organization which was incorporated under the state laws about 10 years ago. She admitted upon questioning that even though the campaign for funds had been in progress since then no missions had been established.

When the mayor suggested that he would communicate with the mayor of Alliance to ascertain the worthiness of the organization, the applicant said that Alliance authorities "do not understand our work" and that they would not recommend it. She was refused a permit.

Two colored men, one of them claiming to be an ordained minister, seeking funds for an orphanage, were also refused permission to operate

Salem Man Goes To Reformatory for Attempted Hold-up

Harold Thompson, Salem, indicted for assault with intent to rob, in connection with the attempted hold-up of Joshua Hoopes, of Winona, last November, was sentenced to serve from one to 15 years in the Mansfield reformatory by Judge E. R. Eastman, Ottawa, in common pleas court, Lisbon, yesterday.

Thompson was indicted on four counts by the January grand jury. He pleaded guilty.

Three companions who are alleged to have been implicated in the attempted robbery of Hoopes were given reformatory sentences last week.

"The sentence of this court is that you shall be committed to the workhouse for 60 days, or until your fine and costs are paid."

Some unlucky prisoner may hear this pronouncement in municipal court today or tomorrow or next week, for the city of East Liverpool, after a lapse of several years, has entered into a contract with the Stark county commissioners for the commitment of offenders to the "works."

Under its provisions, all prisoners who are unable to pay fines advised Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley as soon as Bailiff Carmen D. Hissam had uttered, "Hear ye! Hear ye!" on the third floor of the Thompson building, Market and Fourth streets, this morning.

Benedum and Council Clerk G. A. Shone yesterday afternoon attached their signature to the workhouse contract which is to be in effect during the two-year term of the mayor.

Under its provisions, all prisoners who are unable to pay fines shall be sent to the Canton institution, where they will liquidate their assessment.

The city is to pay $1 per day for the confinement of prisoners, in addition to transportation costs and, in the event of death, burial expenses.

A clause in the agreement provides for abrogation upon 20 days' notice.

"The contract is in effect to-day," said the mayor. "I notified Municipal Judge Hanley that he could begin sending offenders to the workhouse at once, if he so desires."

An appropriation of $300, authorized by council in January, is available for immediate use in paying workhouse bills. If more is necessary, the law permits council to make the appropriation. This would be done by transfer to the workhouse fund.

The contract is expected to prove an effective weapon in enforcement of the prohibition law.

for hereafter it is probable that bootleggers who are unable to pay fines meted out by the municipal judge will be sent to the workhouse.

Since East Liverpool has been without an agreement for the commitment of offenders to the Canton institution, persons unable to pay fines, or who were given penal terms, were sent to the county jail.

The contract is expected to prove an effective weapon in enforcement of the prohibition law.

CHARGE MAN WITH EMPIRE THEFTS

Two more robberies have been attributed by Jefferson county police authorities to Ray Blair, alias Ray Belaire, whose real name is understood to be Ray Smith, and who was arrested recently in Steubenville, following a number of apartment house burglaries.

On December 12 he is alleged to have secured more than $50 at houses at Empire and Stratton by representing himself to be a gas inspector. Howard King, alleged to be Blair's accomplice, who is charged with having impersonated an officer, was released from the county jail this morning on $500 bond.

Blair's connection with the two robberies at Stratton and Empire was discovered by County Detective Campbell and Constable Houser yesterday afternoon. On December 12 it is claimed that Blair entered the home of Miss Gillespie, at Empire, and removed $30, after having displayed a badge and telling the occupants that he was an inspector for the gas company. From the home of Herman Nixon, at Stratton, he is said to have secured $24.15 by the same deceit.

CHEFALA MAY GET HEARING TODAY

A hearing for Joe Chefala, of East Liverpool, charged with shooting with intent to kill, following the wounding of Alphonse Rocco, of 1212 Commerce street, Sunday night, may be held to day before Mayor W. L. Fogo.

Taken to the home of Angelo Ciana, where Rocco went after being shot, Chefala was identified by the wounded man, according to police authorities. He is in prison in jail here.

Q. What has become of the old Surratt house in Washington? M. B. A. During 1915 the famous old Surratt house, which was located on H street, was remodeled into a store and apartment house. It was in this house that the conspiracy to assassinate Lincoln was discussed by John Wilkes Booth and others. The structure had stood intact for nearly sixty years. It was here in the parlor on the second floor that some of the conspirators met and held conferences. John Wilkes Booth went to this house on the afternoon preceding the assassination. There he arranged for horses and guns to use in his flight. The house was the residence of Mrs. Mary Surratt. She conducted it in Civil War times as a boarding house for theatrical people, one of her patients being John Wilkes Booth.

Q. What per cent of the population of the world is Hebrew? J. J.

A. Only six-tenths of one per cent are of this race.

Q. What is the meaning of the word "Noel" used in Christmas music? J. M. T.

A. "Noel" is the French equivalent for the English word "Christmas."

Q. How many people must a community have in order to have a mail carrier? L. W. B.

A. One of the requirements for village delivery is that is shall have a population of 1,500. The others are that the receipts of the office must be at least $5,000, receptacles provided for all houses, the streets named, the sidewalks paved, etc.

Q. In what airship accident did the greatest loss of life occur? H. K.

A. The Roma disaster on Feb. 21, 1922, near Hampton Roads perhaps incurred the greatest loss of life in an airship disaster. Out of 45 men aboard, only 11 were saved and most of them seriously wounded.

Q. How did the controversy between Virginia and West Virginia as to West Virginia's debt to the older state turn out? J. B. E.

A. In April 1919, Virginia brought suit against West Virginia for her debt to Virginia, which was $14,562,867.16 on April 1, 1919. The Supreme Court declared West Virginia liable and the debt has since been funded.

Q. When did Moody and Sankey make their tour of the British Isles? M. C.

A. The great evangelical tour of Dwight Moody and Ira D. Sankey in Great Britain took place in 1873 to 1875.

Q. What state is most densely populated? C. D.

A. Rhode Island leads in density of population per square mile with an average of 568.4. Massachusetts follows with 479.2. The District of Columbia outstrips all the states with 7,272.9 persons to the square mile. The average for the whole United States is 35.5.

Q. What was the best port of entry in colonial days? S. E. B.

A. During the early colonial period, Boston engrossed almost the entire trade of the colonies, but was soon rivaled by New York, Baltimore, Norfolk, Charleston, South Carolina, and the little seaports on the New England coast. Boston was in 1840 selected as the American terminus of the Cunard Line, the first regular line of trans-Atlantic steamers.

Q. What is the difference between a kingdom and an empire? M. T. J.

A. Here is the method, based on the famous Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs: You simply take one teaspoonful and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals irritation, but also loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which are the real cause of the coughing. So the severest cough soon disappears completely.

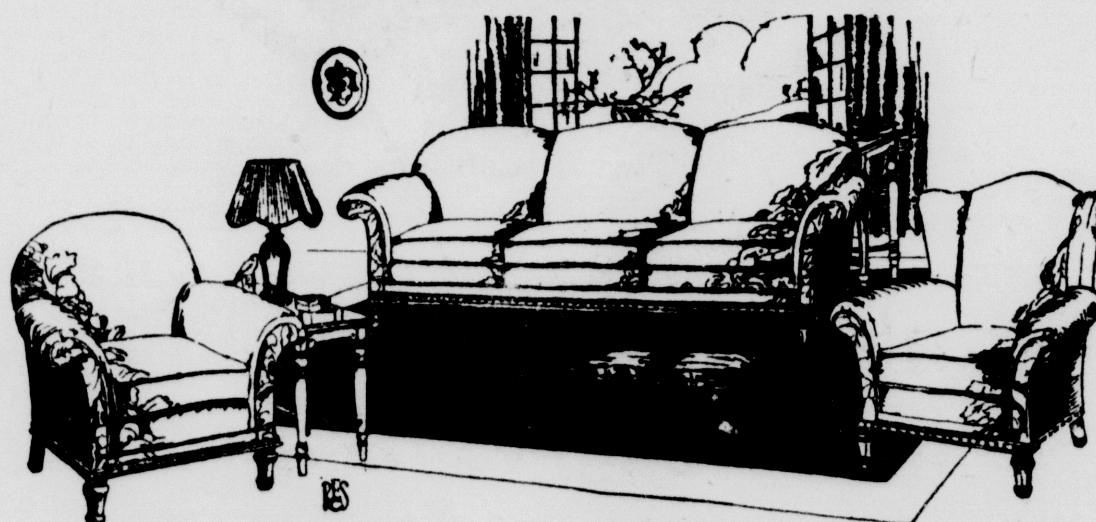

Dr. King's New Discovery is for coughs, chest colds, bronchitis, spasmodic croup, etc. Fine for children, too—no harmful drugs. Very economical, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for

NEW SPRING HATS FOR GIRLS

These Madge Evans hats are made specially for girls. Just as Parisian milliners concentrate their clever brains and their magically swift needles on the creation of women's hats, so the Madge Evans Hat Company spends all its time designing pretty hats for girls.

Mothers who buy their own hats from Paris appreciate genuine style—and for this reason buy Madge Evans hats for their daughters at the store in their locality because they know how important to a girl's likeable appearance these hats are and how charmingly they are made.

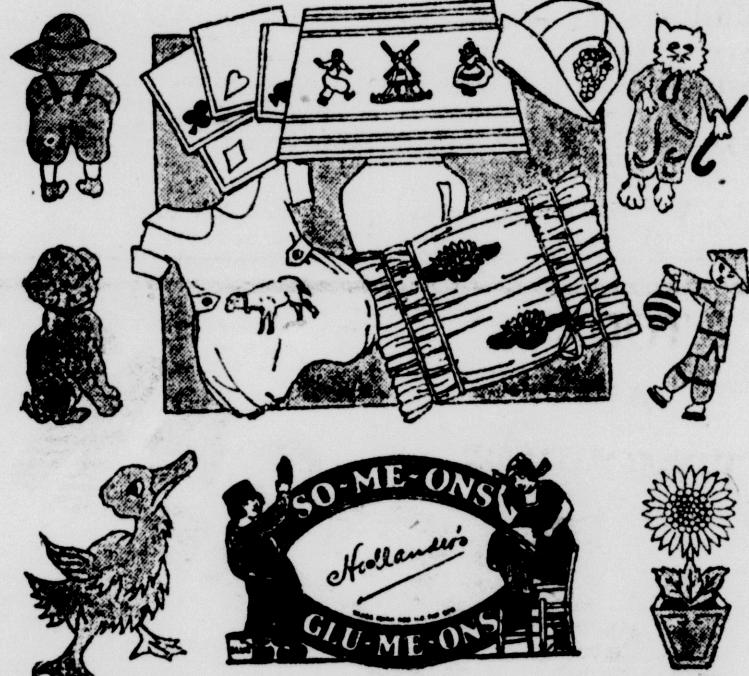

There are Madge Evans hats for girls as young as four—as "grown up" as eighteen; styles for day and school, styles for party and dress wear—styles to go everywhere.

The new hats for Spring are developed of fancy braids, taffeta, and ribbon. Novel trimming features—cunning shapes—altogether smart and youthful.

Some of the colors are blues, rose, tan, red, green and henna. Priced from $4.50 to $6.00.

Other Spring hats for girls priced from $2.95 to $4.50.

5,427 PUPILS ENROLLED HERE, M'VAY REPORTS

High Mark Reached in Schools During January.

ATTENDANCE 91.9

Almost 900 Students in Four Class of High School.

Enrollment in the East Liverpool district schools reached a high mark during the month ending January 29, according to the report of Superintendent Charles S. McVay.

The total enrollment is 5,427. The monthly enrollment was 5,152, as compared with 4,709, the record for January of last year, of an increase of 418. Of this number, approximately 100 are students in the part time school which was not established until the beginning of the 1925-26 term. Deducting this the increased enrollment is approximately 343.

Perfect attendance for the month was attained by 2,363 pupils, while the percentage of attendance was 91.9. Cases of tardiness numbered 176, while 257 home visits were made by the teachers. Patrons who visited the schools numbered 484. Superintendent McVay made 109 visits.

The enrollment by buildings follows: High school, 878; Central, 499; Garfield, 465; Sixth street, 418; Horace Mann, 375; Neville, 357; Lincoln, 350; Pleasant Heights, 337; Grant, 17; McKinley, 301; Washington, 235; Maplewood, 162; Third street, 155; Glenmoor, 137; Klondyke, 135; West End, 87; Walkers, 79; Trentvalle, 64; Dixonsville, 42; Gardendale, 34.

HEAD OF RURAL SCHOOLS RESIGNS

John D. Muldoon, supervisor of rural schools in the department of education for five years, has resigned and will leave the department within a few days. Reports at the capitol that L. T. Tustin, his assistant, will be promoted to the supervisorship were neither confirmed nor denied. Mr. Muldoon has accepted a position as teacher at Marshall college which was offered to him by the state board of education at its meeting last week and to him was granted a leave of absence until July.

During the intervening months, he will be at West Virginia university to complete his part of the work of revising a course of study for elementary schools of the state. He will go to Morgantown this week.

Mr. Tustin has served as assistant supervisor of schools for a year or more. Before coming to Charleston he was district supervisor of schools of Beaver Pond district, Mercer county.

GAME CONDITIONS TO BE DISCUSSED

The first session of the state conservation commission for forests, parks and game preserves, will be held in Wheeling March 18. Persons interested in the above are invited to attend the sessions.

The commission was created at the recent term of the state legislature, and is composed of Governor Howard M. Gore, chairman; Nat T. Frame, director of agricultural extension work, vice chairman; an executive secretary; John W. Smith, commissioner of agriculture; Dr. I. C. White, state geologist; Fred E. Cowl, of this city, chairman of the State Fish and Game commission.

Veterinary Returns Home. Dr. W. S. White, state veterinarian, who has been inspecting cattle in Hancock county for several weeks, has returned to his home in St. Mary's. He examined a number of herds for tuberculosis during his visit. Large majority of cattle examined were found free of traces of disease.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trustees did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 948-M Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save your life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

Mrs. Dell Bear of Ohio avenue fell down the cellar steps of her home a few days ago and sustained a sprain and ankle.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Woorsley of Beaver avenue is visiting with relatives in Pittsburgh.

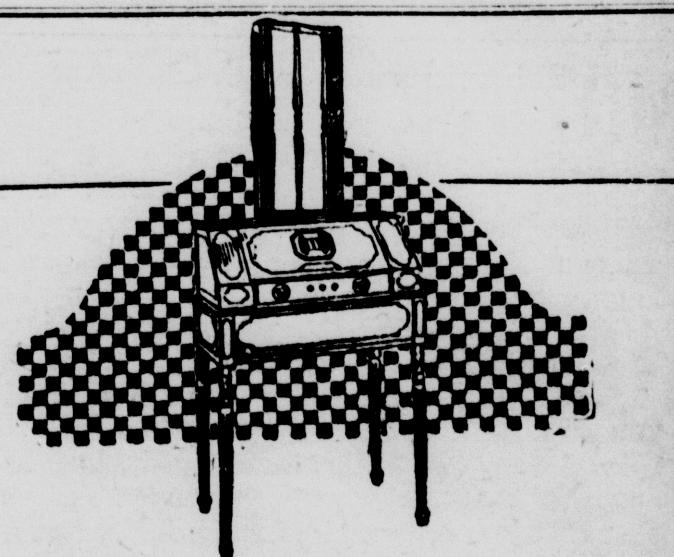

Mrs. W. H. Hamilton of Midland avenue was the guest Saturday of her

Safe and Sane Fourth Ordinance

The city council, aiming to make the next Fourth of July in East Liverpool "safe and sane," has under consideration an ordinance, sponsored by Solon Thomas Farrall, which prohibits the use of fireworks within the municipal limits, but the proposed legislation makes no reference to the sale of pyrotechnics.

In order to hear protests against the measure, which are expected to be made by dealers, the ordinance's passage was delayed until the next session after it was recently placed on second reading. It is expected to be adopted on Thursday evening, Feb. 17.

The consensus of opinion is that restrictions on fireworks are necessary if the toll of Independence Day accidents is to be decreased, but it is doubtful whether the ordinance now under consideration shall prove effective. If fireworks are sold, it is a foregone conclusion that they will be discharged by adults as well as boys and girls. And East Liverpool's small police force will be unable to cope with the problem of enforcing the enactment.

According to the American museum of safety and the national committee for the prevention of blindness, fireworks celebrations killed 111 persons and injured 1,030 others last Fourth of July in 500 cities in 36 states. And this report is far from complete, for in some southern cities where there is little restriction on fireworks, no statistics at all were obtainable.

Some claim that more people have been killed and wounded in celebrating Independence Day since 1876 than were killed and wounded in the Revolutionary war.

And, it is interesting to note, the figures indicate the greatest number of accidents occur in towns where the safe and sane Fourth is not yet established.

The sensible thing to do is to outlaw the dangerous pyrotechnics, from a sale as well as a use standpoint, and devise safer ways of celebrating the birthday of American independence.

Rus in Urbe

Perhaps an apology is due for the Latin words above. But there is a certain felicity in them that is hard to express in four syllables of English. The old Roman poet Horace is said to have used the phrase to describe the little Villa the Emperor Augustus gave him in the suburbs. He said it was "country in town." It gave him all the advantages of the city along with those of rural life.

If our civilization ever turns to Latin mottoes again, this will be appropriate for millions of Americans. You see the tendency as plain as a pikestaff. The latest scientific prophecy suggests that "country in town" is going to have an amazing extension in the future.

Tesla, the great electrical inventor, predicts that a natural development of radio will enable people to see, by means of a little instrument carried in their pockets, what is going on at a distance, as in a magic crystal. Thus we shall see presidents inaugurated, world's series played, battles fought, dramas performed, etc., as though we were present.

It doesn't seem impossible. And added to present radio facilities and means of transportation, it points to a future of "decentralization" of which our cities have never dreamed. People can live in the most remote places as in the presence of urban life, remaining there in comfort and going back and forth at will.

Select your forest nook, mountain top, desert or sea island, build a cottage there and label it "Rus in Urbe."

Kentucky's Preventative Progress

During the trial and sentence of a murderer at Lexington, Ky., the other day, the guilty man was protected by 1,000 militia, with machine guns and whippet tanks.

The size and quality of the protective forces may seem a little excessive to some parts of the country. Yet the move made by Gov. Fields was undoubtedly a good one. Not only did it protect that particular murderer from mob violence. It also protected the members of the potential mob from the brainstorms, the soiled hands and remorse which would have been their portion had they joined a lynching riot. It set a precedent for the decent and dignified process of administering justice in Lexington, Ky. And it set an example for the whole country to follow under similar circumstances.

The only way to stop lynchings is before they begin. Kentucky has shown the world that she has the gumption to do that very thing.

10,000 New Garages

It is estimated that more than one-fourth of the new buildings to be erected in the United States during 1926 are to be garages. About 200,000 will be private garages. Ten thousand will be built for commercial or public service.

For one-fourth of all new buildings to be devoted to the single purpose of housing automobiles seems surprising. But the development of the automobile industry and the increase in the number of car-owners have also been surprising.

As for the 10,000 public garages—that number may seem small. How to house for the day automobiles that come into large business centers is already a burdensome problem to many communities. It will take not only more garages but probably new types of garages taking up less ground space than at present to house such cars in the future.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Bulgarian Art
WASHINGTON, D. C. Feb. 9.—Historians and others who have made a study of Bulgaria have always for the most part devoted themselves solely to the political and militaristic side of that nation. The Bulgarians themselves are anxious that the world should realize that their interests have not been entirely of this nature. They wish to call attention to the fact that they have long had a native art culture.

That this might be done a committee of scholars and artists was appointed some time ago, through the efforts and research of which it was possible to publish an illustrated book which tells the story of early Bulgarian art.

Professor Dr. Bogdan D. Filov, Director of the National Museum in Sofia, and the author of the work referred to, says in the preface that it is incorrect to consider it as proved that the Bulgarians took all their intellectual culture and material civilization from Byzantium and merely made it their own.

The fact that the Bulgarians were the first of the Slavonic peoples to create a literature of their own which they transmitted to other Slavs, he continues, "should of itself be sufficient proof that, in intellectual domain, they maintained their independence of Byzantium and endeavored to preserve their own national character. They were also the first Slav nation to found an entirely independent national church."

Dr. Filov questions whether the Bulgarians could have maintained their position as the only great power in the Balkan peninsula co-existent with the Byzantine Empire, if they had depended merely upon their military excellences. He says that the numerous ancient Bulgarian monuments of art found in Danubian Bulgaria and Thrace, as well as in Macedonia, indicate that this land was not only drenched with their blood for centuries, but also fertilized by their intellect.

The archaeological importance of Bulgarian monuments of art has been recognized by scholars outside of Bulgaria. A well-known Russian art historian spent considerable time investigating these monuments and voiced his opinion that "in Bulgaria it is not a question of any local form of Byzantine art, which, influenced by Constantinople though not having originated there, proved itself so strong and vigorous, that even under Turkish rule it continued to flourish and to produce works of art of no small importance."

Diverse Artistic Currents

The geographical position of Bulgaria greatly affected the art of the country. Being situated close to the most important centers of the culture of antiquity, Bulgaria was an important meeting point for different artistic currents, and the effects of these may easily be traced in the native art.

Greek art penetrated into Bulgaria and the products of Ionian art of Asia Minor, especially, found their way into all parts of the country. At the same time, however, there existed in the interior a highly developed native art which had been taken there by the ancient Thracians. It has only been in recent times that much information regarding this has been available.

Discoveries made in the burial mounds of southern Bulgaria show that it was peculiar in style and wholly unlike Greek art. It suggested the Scythian objects of art found in the south of Russia, and was chiefly characterized by a fondness for fantastic representations of animals.

When Bulgaria became a Roman province at the beginning of the first century after Christ, the Roman influence is shown in the art of that country. This influence is particularly noticeable in the tombstones, which were at first very simple, becoming in the course of time more and more richly decorated. This native art, which was strongly influenced by Greek and Roman models, reached its highest development in the second century after Christ.

During the third century the native

art began to be barbarized. The classical antique features gave way before a rough, naive peasant art which spread over the entire country. During the fourth century tomb-paintings reached a high standard of development, and these new tombstones replaced the earlier ones which had been decorated with reliefs.

The new art was most pronounced in architecture. During the period between the fourth and seventh centuries a succession of magnificent church buildings were erected. These were of many types and showed that the early Christian buildings in Bulgaria were greatly influenced by the contemporary architecture of the East.

This short summary of Bulgaria's art affords a better understanding of ancient Bulgarian art. This is belonged to the period before the Kingdom of Bulgaria was established but it created art traditions that produced a strong after-effect in later periods.

A Versatile Ruler

The glorious age of the first Bulgarian Kingdom is declared to have been the reign of Czar Simeon the Great (888-927). Simeon was educated in Constantinople and was not only a capable warrior and statesman, but also a great patron of art and science.

A contemporary writer describes his court as being exceptionally brilliant, gold and silver, stones of different colors, marble, and copper, wall-paintings and wood-carving being used in profusion to decorate the rooms. All that remains of these are a few capitals and richly decorated slabs from a marble frieze, together with some less important architectural fragments.

While these slabs are suggestive of oriental types, on the whole they retain the original features of the earliest Bulgarian art.

The ruins of a monastery have been discovered on top of a thickly wooded hill near Patleima. Although the church is quite an insignificant building.

WHAT YOU READ LONG TIME AGO

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO.

February 9, 1901.

Two cases of diphtheria are reported in the home of William Nelson of the Calcutta road.

George Mackey is confined to his home in Gardendale by illness.

Miss Mame Berg of Jefferson street, who has been afflicted with typhoid fever for several weeks, is slowly improving.

S. T. Herbert, A. W. Thomas, E. W. Hill and George Grosshans are attending the county Republican central committee meeting today in Lisbon.

Miss Francis Hardy of College street returned home today from a visit in St. Louis, Mo.

Miss Emma Kerr of West 5th street left today for a two week's visit in Atlantic City. She will join a party of friends from Pittsburgh.

Miss Katherine McFadden of Walnut street, has returned from a several days' visit with friends in Beaver Falls.

Miss Edna Wasson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wasson of Sugar street, underwent an operation for appendicitis Thursday in the Beaver Valley hospital, New Brighton. She is recovering nicely.

TEN YEARS AGO.

Mrs. A. E. DeHaven of Morton street, who has been ill with grippe, has recovered.

George Lloyd of Seventh street, who is suffering with typhoid pneumonia, is recovering.

Earl E. McClure, who is employed in Cleveland, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John McClure of Globe street.

A surprise was tendered Miss Edna Betts at her home on Thompson avenue Monday evening, the occasion being in observance of her birthday anniversary.

of glossy new architecture dotted with palm fronds. Ten years ago a sleepy little town of 5,000 nestled in the swamps. Today Greater Miami is as modern as any American city—has 200,000 inhabitants and continues to expand.

Miami does not belong particularly to Florida any more than Los Angeles belongs to California. Each belongs to the world as striking examples of American magic. In the pier sheds were the usual realty hustlers and binder boys—the gleaners who trail the path of every land boom.

Also the homesick you see in every port, hungering for a friendly face from home. It was a slice of Times Square to see Wells Hawks, with an autumn leaf tan, on hand to greet the trekkers. He is the dean of Broadway's army of press agents.

A stranger is offered the courtesy of many automobiles free. Entente, however, to wherever you are going you are deftly maneuvered for a look—you don't have to buy but take a look—at one of those realty projects in the throes of incubation.

Along the causeway leading from Miami to Miami Beach were shirt-sleeved fishermen, casting for perch, and on the asphalt sidewalks cots of fish were flapping to death. In frequent traffic halts I saw a fisherman land five in quick succession.

One of my fleeting first flash impressions was the lack of hats. Very few people wear them down here. Truly Warner would starve in Florida. Even coats are a rather uncommon sight. The men go to business in golf-togs or white trousers and soft-collared shirts. The people seem happy and there is that odd buoyancy one always finds in semi-tropical countries.

Everywhere buildings are going up. They work all night. "How are wages?" I asked a native laborer. "Higher than a cat's back," he replied.

The real estate boom has developed a unique manner of approach. Strangers knocking at the door announce purely personal visits with: "I'm not trying to sell anything."

There are very few of those dapper and gaily-habited young men who enhance the cosmopolitan air of Manhattan down here. Instead you see the butter-faced country boys with apple cheeks and the rolling gait of those who follow the south end of a plow in the broiling sun. It is evident they have rushed here hugging dreams of escaping the monotony of farm drudgery. Many will return to an earlier environment. Thousands are living "off the cuff," or as we say up north, "mooshing." And, of course, there are the thousands who have shucked off a mediocre humdrum for the opulence of wealth acquired almost over night.

The ultimate in audacity: I absent-mindedly asked a waiter at luncheon if he had any grape fruit. The same effect is achieved by asking Flo Ziegfeld if he has any pretty girls.

METHUSELAH'S WIFE

THE STORY OF A GONE ERIC DUN WIMMERSHOP FOR MONEY

SEVENTY.
The airplanes had gone thundering back to Chicago, bearing the Follett company. The last guest had departed or been carried away. Sleepy-eyed caterer's assistants were listlessly clearing up the disordered remnants of the feast. Decorations that had seemed so dream-like and fairily-wrought eight hours before, hung tattered and torn and soiled. The rising sun shone through the glass roof over the swimming pool and sparkled upon the water, but over the rest of the recent scene of so much merriment, a pall seemed to hang.

Noble Harwood slowly climbed the stairs, while Louis watched him from below wondering. Noble thought Laurel was in her suite, and he had no desire to face her, though he knew he must. At first he had been angry because she, and his daughters, had fled, but now, as he reflected, his feelings on that score had subsided. If only they had stayed though, it would not have been so bad; for he could have made some people think that Lorraine was only a maudlin guest playing a joke.

Nero fiddled while Rome burned, and Noble Harwood paid fifty-seven thousand dollars to set the stage for a social disaster for himself. That is what the Arabian Nights ball cost him.

A bitter smile twisted his mouth as he thought of this, pausing on the uppermost step.

After hesitating at Laurel's door, he stole into his own suite, and sat down, a desolate figure, by his fireplace, first undoing the stays of his costume. . . . He felt very old.

Burnham, entered the room several hours later, found his master sleeping in the chair before the fire, and awakened him: "I thought, sir, that you'd be more comfortable if lying down. Let me help you with your costume, sir."

"What time is it?"

Laurel might be awake; he must go and see her. "I'd like some strong coffee, Burnham, and a cold bath."

"But, sir, you'll be most uncomfortable today, unless you rest for several hours in bed. Let me call you at noon, sir."

Noble shook his head. "And ask Ella if Mrs. Harwood is awake."

"Yes, sir."

Let Tanlac restore your health

If your body is all fagged-out and run down, if you are losing weight steadily, lack appetite, have no strength or energy—why not let Tanlac help you back to health and strength?

So many millions have been benefited by the Tanlac treatment, so many thousands have written to testify to that that it's sheer folly not to make the test.

Tanlac, you know, is a great natural tonic and builder, a compound, after the famous Tanlac formula, of roots, barks and herbs. It purges the blood stream, revitalizes the digestive organs and enables the sickly body to regain its vanished strength.

You don't need to wait long to get results. Tanlac goes right to the seat of trouble. In a day or so you note a vast difference in your condition. You have more appetite, sleep better at night and the color begins to creep back into your washed-out cheeks.

Don't put off taking Tanlac another precious day. Step into the nearest drug store and get a bottle of this world-famed tonic. That's the first important step back to health and vigor. Every day's delay means unnecessary suffering, for Tanlac starts to clean out and tone up the system right away. And by acting promptly you will avoid further loss of energy and confident of her mother now. "No. Come, get up." She led her into the bathroom—bathed her face in cold water, and made her inhale smelling salts.

"Now, Laurel, this is an awful mess, but crying and carrying on, however badly you feel, isn't going to help matters. You need all your strength now, and it will be foolish for you to give up completely to your feelings. I want you to promise me that you won't do anything foolish."

"I'll try, mother."

"I won't allow any of these cats around here to be coming in to bother you, and I want you to take a good rest. Read, or dig in the garden, or anything but think about your troubles."

"I'll try, mother." She was moved to put her arms around her mother and kiss her. "O, you're so good. I don't know what I would have done if I hadn't had you to come to."

But try as she might, Laurel could not keep her mind from wandering back to the events of the awful night.

She tried to eat, but she had no appetite. Food was revolting.

She wanted to be alone, to flee—but where?

What was she to do now? She couldn't live in Central City now—she couldn't. Such a thing was impossible.

And where was she to go?

"Now, Laurel, you're not keeping your promise. You're not to allow yourself to get into those moods."

Laurel, her thoughts thus disturbed, looked up at her mother with eyes that she could not keep from moistening.

In the next instalment Mrs. Brent Daily Expressed Her Feelings Savagely.

Noble was undressing himself when the servant returned with the soffepot. "Ella says, sir, that Mrs. Harwood isn't in the house."

"No?" The information was startling. Noble's heart dropped a beat. . . . Laurel had left him. He managed to say, "Very well, Burnham. . . . Uh, have Henry bring out the coupe." She might have stayed until she heard what he had to say. She shouldn't have gone off like this. His thoughts began to run an angry course.

"Never mind, Burnham," he said finally. "I think I will go to bed." She probably thought he would come hurrying to her side, begging forgiveness. Well, he would not. She was his wife. She shouldn't have humiliated him in this fashion. . . . He did not attempt to reason now.

Eight blocks away, in the home of Mrs. Wellington Todd, Noble Harwood's wife was in the midst of the third spell of weeping she had gone through since her nocturnal descent upon her mother.

Worried and drawn, Mrs. Todd climbed the stairs for the third time since arising and attempting to induce her daughter to take some nourishment. This time determination shone in her eye. She entered the room without knocking.

"Now, Laurel, it's time to stop all this crying and do some thinking. You'll make yourself sick. And now, you must keep in mind, you'll have to consider your health first." She was thinking of Laur's surprising announcement regarding her condition.

Laurel slowly raised her head. "Mother, I've tried. I've tried, but I—"

"You're going to get up this minute and bathe your face and come downstairs. There's warm food awaiting you, and you're going to force yourself to eat some fruit and broth. Come, get up." She took her daughter by the shoulders and raised her to a sitting position.

"I suppose Noble will be coming to see you soon."

"Mother, I won't see him. Don't admit him. I won't see him. I won't—"

"Very well, but come downstairs."

Laurel suddenly paused. "Is he down there now?" She was not so

Sportsman is "as good as new" after one treatment

Sportsmen have learned a simple way to take out pain and stiffness when they get lame from exposure or over-exertion.

A Philadelphia sportsman writes that he caught cold in his back while out gunning and the next day found himself so stiff and lame he could hardly bend.

"I went to work, but had to come home," he writes. "I applied Sloan's freely and went to bed. The next morning I was as good as new, thanks to the quick and sure action of Sloan's Liniment." (Name and address given on request.)

Fail to Identify Pretty Girl Slain In New York City

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—The identity of the pretty girl, found slain in a snow drift in East Fifty-fourth street, was still a mystery today. Her mutilated body lay in city morgue, unidentified, while detectives were engaged in a hunt for her slayer.

A wounded man, Charles Mitchell, 28, suffering in Bellevue hospital from bullet wounds and at first believed by police to be involved was practically eliminated from the inquiry today. It was declared that he received his injuries in a bootleg war.

In an effort to identify the slain girl, detectives were questioning habitues of Broadway night clubs.

The photoplay offering is "How Baxter Busted In."

BOOZE SEIZED, TWO ARRESTED

East Liverpool Man and Woman Held in Beaver.

Mrs. Agnes Vaughn, 314 Crook alley, and Clifford Ohlinger, truck driver, are in the county jail at Beaver, Pa., today awaiting action at the March term of court upon charges of transporting and possessing intoxicating liquors. Their bonds were fixed at $2,000 each by Justice David Stewart, Beaver, upon preliminary arraignment last night.

They were arrested shortly after 12 o'clock Sunday morning when Motorcycle Officer Adam McConaughay, of Beaver, stopped their car as they were passing through Beaver. McConaughay was standing in front of the Beaver municipal building when he noticed a roadster without a tail light pass along the main street.

He gave chase and stopped the car near the borough limits. In the rear compartment of the machine was found 10 five-gallon cans of whisky. The accused said the liquor had been secured in Pittsburgh and was being brought to Midland and East Liverpool.

Mrs. Vaughn told Beaver county officials that the automobile which Ohlinger was driving was the property of her son. The car is being held by the authorities until this report is verified.

Police say that Mrs. Vaughn was arrested and fined here several months ago for a liquor violation. An unsuccessful attempt was also made to destroy her home by fire about three months ago.

here when they failed to satisfy the mayor that the money would be used for the announced purpose.

Local vendors of candy, who make daily rounds in potters and stores, need no permit and will not be molested, the mayor said.

Explanation of Order

"The ban on peddlers is not aimed at residents of East Liverpool, we do not intend to tolerate the carpet barker, who comes into town, stays for a few days and then moves on to a new field of labor, perhaps, never to return," the mayor said.

The city has no jurisdiction over persons who make a house-to-house canvass seeking orders for brushes, stocking, cheeses and other merchandise, which is to be delivered at later date. This, the mayor claims, would interfere with inter-state trade relations. Ex-service men may obtain a county permit, which permits them to work in any town of the county without a municipal permit, but no one is operating here under the provision of this act of the legislature at the present time, according to the authorities.

30 Crippled Children Here.

"President Coolidge once said that universal education was the greatest gift that America ever made to civilization," said Mrs. Hadley. "It is true that we have universal education but we lack a universal opportunity. Because of physical handicaps many thousands of children are unable to take advantage of that universal education."

"Ohio tries to educate its children who are under physical handicap. A few years ago a limited number of our children were educated but today education is free to all. We have compulsory school laws which require children to attend school."

"In the last year schools for crippled children have been established in Cambridge, Mansfield, Sandusky and Lancaster. Of course, we have schools in the larger cities but I name these four because they are comparable to East Liverpool. You have about 30 crippled children in your community."

"We were told a couple of years ago when a survey was made of the crippled children here that you did not think it timely to educate these children—that first you were interested in bettering their physical condition. The state is willing to bear a large part of the expense in establishing a school for crippled children. A school for these children, who are unable to attend schools with other children, who cost no more than any other school."

NEW AIR FIGHT LOOMS IN QUIZ OF "LOBBYING"

Hint Other Officers May Meet Same Fate as Mitchell.

PATRICK MARKED

Another Outburst in Congress is Threatened.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—A new air controversy flamed across the army horizon today as a result of the investigation ordered by Secretary of War Davis to ascertain the extent of "lobbying" activities by officers of the air service in favor of particular legislation.

Behind the new probe into the much-investigated air service looms the war department's threat to mete out to officers who "talk out of turn" the same fate that was visited upon Col. Wm. Mitchell.

President Coolidge and Secretary of War Davis were represented as being determined to stamp out opposition to administration policies in the air service, even at the cost of separating more good flyers from the army payroll.

The air service buzzed today with reports that Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chief of army air service, was marked down for discipline because of his advocacy of an unified air service instead of the administration's program as embodied in the Morrow board report.

Patrick Urges Separate Unit

Undaunted by the fate that overtook Mitchell, Gen. Patrick has steadfastly continued to endorse a separate air service before committees of congress. It has been distinctly disconcerting for the administration in its efforts to push the Morrow recommendations through congress to have the army's chief aviation spokesman backing something entirely different.

The Davis investigation threatened today to provoke another outburst in congress.

Representative James, Republican of Michigan, ranking member of the house military affairs committee, declared that "If the war department is going to clamp down on officers for merely expressing their views before congressional committees then it is more of a pop-gun bureaucracy than even Mitchell painted it."

Other members declared that the department's latest "gag" move may result in congress passing the Garrett resolution, which provides for a congressional investigation into the war department's penalizing officers for giving testimony before its committee.

Mitchell Prepares for Tour

Meanwhile, Col. Mitchell is preparing for his lecture tour to tell the country what is wrong with national defense, simply chortled over the latest turn of affairs.

"They're merely making my charges good," he said. "Secretary Davis' action is part of the outrageous policy of intimidating air men who are in favor of an unified air service. Because they oppose the clique that runs the department they are clubbed and silenced by inquisitorial methods."

"Apparently things have reached a stage where an officer is to be considered traitor whenever he cannot entirely agree with the bureaucracy that now controls national defense."

"They're merely now demonstrating the truth of what I have said about them."

Orville R. Anderson, 29, Dies Suddenly In Beechwood Home

Orville Richard Anderson, 29, died suddenly of heart failure early today in his home in Center street, Beechwood.

Mr. Anderson, who had been ill for several weeks, resumed his duties yesterday at Homer Laughlin China company plant No. 4, Newell. He was apparently in good health when he returned home in the evening. He was stricken shortly after midnight.

He is survived by his wife, one son, Raymond; two daughters, Bernadine and Norma; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Anderson. He was a member of the Protection Home Circle.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon in the home, Rev. A. L. Duncan, pastor of the Chester Free Methodist church, will be in charge. Burial will be made in Locust Hill cemetery, Chester.

Barthelme Stars
In "Soul Fire," at
American Theatre

Richard Barthelme, in his newest First National production, "Soul Fire," now at the American theatre, is looked upon by critics as the foremost young actor of the screen. Moreover, he is known as the friend of the unknown player.

The young star had a hard struggle before he won stellar honors in the films, and he has not forgotten the trials and tribulations that stud the path of the cinema newcomer. Many a young player owes his start to Barthelme.

Fred W. Fox, critic and editor of The Film Mercury, made an interesting comment regarding Barthelme in a recent issue.

"To the unknown there seems to be one hope in the motion picture field," said Mr. Fox, "If we are to judge by consistent adherence to a policy of ability, rather than NAMES. That is Richard Barthelme."

"With Barthelme in 'Classmates' were three boys who virtually knocked the audience for a row of holidays. I'm the bung when it comes to remembering names, but you doubtless recall the two who played the part of his classmates and Reginald Shefield, who essayed the heavy role. Not one of those three young men meant anything to the box office, but Dick gave them a chance, and if they don't make good it won't be his fault.

"I have watched Richard Barthelme's progress from playing opposite Marguerite Clark in the long ago, through a series of Dorothy Gish comedies, through Griffith leads to his present place, and I know that it will be many a long year before the film world gets another boy who has done as much to implant motion pictures in the public regard as he has done.

"Dick Barthelme could be the worst actor on earth and yet he'd be a success for the simple reason that he possesses an all-essential quality that too many of our bygone stars lacked and was their undoing and that is today sending many capable thespians to the junk heap, and that is—sincerity. The fact that he is not a lens hog, a greater-than-thou autocrat, and that he is utterly devoid of that conceit that ruins so many of our actors, has done more for him than a century of billboards."

ing, the interior was formerly partially covered with colored glazed tiles. The discovery of some of these was considered of tremendous importance in tracing the story of the ancient art in Bulgaria. The ornamentation, said to be somewhat like the frieze slabs of Preslav, is painted in red, yellow, green, light and dark brown on a white ground. Most of these were so badly damaged however, that it was impossible to reconstitute an entire tile. The wall-paintings of churches are of considerable interest. There are many which were done in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries. Some of these were not discovered until during the World War and although they are much damaged they appear to belong to some of the best work of their kind and have great artistic value. Regarding these wall-paintings, Dr. Filow says, "Considering the material we possess, we are fully justified in speaking even for this period of distinct Bulgarian schools of painting. How far their influence extended, how far they were connected with the other schools of the same period, and where this art originated—these are questions which can only be answered after further researches."

The facts brought out by the study made by the committee of which Dr. Filow was a member, are manifest evidence of how deeply the artistic feeling was rooted in the soul of the people, and what an eminent position art has always held in the intellectual life of the Bulgarians.

The London and North Eastern railway will spend $10,000,000 this year in construction of 239 locomotives and engines and 7,400 cars.

CASES DROPPED
FROM DOCKET

Actions Dismissed by Judge Moore in Court Here.

For failure to file a petition and to prosecute the action after it was filed in common pleas court, Judge James G. Moore has dismissed two causes from the docket.

The first one to be taken from the list was that of James Bowers against Henry F. Herbert, which was carried on a court of the justice of the peace on appeal. This claim was for $35, and was filed in common pleas August 30, 1924.

The second case to be dismissed on a like cause was that of H. D. McGaren, a minor, by F. J. Dugdale, his next friend against the Buckeye Motor Co. of East Liverpool. This was an action to recover $20 claimed to be due on the sale of a motor vehicle, and was carried to common pleas on appeal from a court of justice of the peace Sept. 6, 1924.

"Dismissed for lack of prosecution" is the entry made by the court in the case of the state of Ohio against Theodore R. Sanor, an appeal on a peace warrant, which appeal was filed Oct. 2, 1924.

Strong and Active
At 80—No More
Sciatica or Arthritis

Amazing and Lasting Relief Through New Magic of ARIUM—Radium in Tablets
Without Drugs. Test it Yourself.

$5000 REWARD IF IT FAILS*

"ARIUM ended my sciatica in thirty days and restored the strength and energy to my extent after they had been useless or trifling for twelve years from arthritis," says Mr. George A. Mayo of Washington. "I believe that it is my duty to other sufferers to allow you to use my letter as you may see fit. It would be impossible for me to get it too strong, as I have been feeling like a new man since using ARIUM. I am 80 years old, but now strong and active."

If you are one of the thousands who are still needlessly suffering untold agony from sharp, stabbing pains, or dull, deadly aches which never seem to leave you—if you are steadily losing your youth and usefulness under the terrific torture of sciatica, rheumatism, or gout, come to it yourself to try ARIUM at once. Doctors and Hospital Authorities and men and women in every walk of life, stand absolutely amazed at the way it so quickly reduces inflammation, soothes and relieves pain. ARIUM actually helps in a definite way to remove the real cause of rheumatism by dissolving the salts which have crystallized and hardened in the nerve fibers. By holding the salts in solution and thus preventing them from depositing on the nerves the action of ARIUM has proven little short of miraculous—even in seemingly hopeless cases.

A multitude of alarming symptoms quickly disappear. You see and feel a truly startling improvement in yourself each day. The Associated Radium Chemists, Inc., of New York, which supplies druggists with ARIUM, guarantees successful and satisfactory results in every case. Price, $1.00 per box or more if required, and offers $5,000.00 Reward if it fails to prove that a definite quantity of genuine radium is used in its preparation. ARIUM is easy and economical to take and may now be readily obtained in this city from my good druggist, who can easily get it for you if he has none in stock.

Resumes Work of Building Homes

Mr. H. D. Mays of 10 S. 5th St., Martins Ferry, Ohio, resumed his work of building again. Mr. Mays is probably one of the best known contractors of Martins Ferry and vicinity, having resided there and in Wheeling for many years past.

He was a sufferer from rheumatism affecting his entire body with indigestion, poor appetite, gas, and all the usual ills accompanying a disordered stomach.

Since taking Kadi-lok he emphatically declares the rheumatic pains have left him, and his stomach and other organs are functioning perfectly. Since regaining his health he has been actively engaged in his contracting business, which he was not able to properly attend to before. Kadi-lok will do all that is claimed for it, as thousands of others have testified. Kadi-lok probably has more true friends than any other remedy of its kind on the market.

Kadi-lok is sold in East Liverpool at Mathew's Cut Rate Store and other drug stores.

BUILDINGS WILL BE RE-LOCATED

Members of the board of education of St. Clair township held a conference Monday with Prosecuting Attorney Robert M. Brookes and the county commissioners relative to the situation that will prevail when the East Liverpool-Youngstown road is constructed along the property upon which is located Township line school.

The location of the new road will crowd the buildings used for school purposes, the board of education explained, and it was agreed that during the summer period, the buildings would be relocated by the county, so that no inconvenience would arise when grading is in progress. The county commissioners in turn discussed the subject with County Surveyor Lloyd Kirk, and an arrangement has been perfected whereby the desires of the board of education will be agreed to.

FIVE MEN TAKEN TO MANSFIELD

Paul and Raymond McCave of Salem, sentenced by Judge James G. Moore last fall to the Mansfield reformatory, were taken to that institution Monday by Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Kindsvatter and Constable Clarence Wetzel of Center township. Accompanying the McCave brothers were also Raymond Stacey of East Liverpool, Fred Taylor and Russell Kelley of Salem.

Stacey was sentenced for being implicated in the theft of merchandise at East Liverpool, while Taylor and Russell were sentenced upon their plea of guilty to robbing poultry houses.

New Filing Cabinets. On account of the heavy accumulation of duplicate bills of sale and other court records, the county commissioners are to install new filing cabinets in the office of Clerk of Courts Frank Ballantine. Under the present filing system, there is no place in the office where the new bills of sale can be filed.

Filing cabinets are also to be purchased by the commissioners for the office of County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk, where the accumulation of plans and other records has reached the same stage as in the office of Mr. Ballantine.

Services for Masons.

Rev. R. J. Bennett, pastor of the Lisbon Christian church, will preach a special sermon at the evening service Feb. 21 on the subject, "George Washington as a Mason." The Rev. Bennett has announced that he will send a personal invitation to all members of the Masonic fraternity in Center township to attend this service, which will be featured by a special program of music by the church choir.

Claims Hearing.

County commissioners Monday devoted three hours to the hearing of damage claims on the North Georgetown-East Rochester road and also on the Georgetown Valley road.

The Georgetown Valley road will follow a new and more direct line than the present traveled road, the new route having been designed to eliminate many objectionable features now existing on the present route.

Judgment Rendered.

Judge E. R. Eastman has rendered judgment for $1,764 in the case of Andrew Schmidt against Harry A. Inman, which is an action in foreclosure. The court has also found there to be due Elizabeth Aultman on her cross petition an amount of $571.28, with six per cent interest add to both amounts. Foreclosure of mortgage and an order of sale has been ordered by the court.

Application Granted.

The application of the trustees of Middle Sandy Presbyterian church in West township to sell certain property, and the funds to be used in the purchase of a new manse, has been granted by Judge James G. Moore. The trustees propose to sell the old manse and obtain a new and larger one for the use of its pastor.

Partition Sought.

John Stewart George has filed an action in common pleas court through his counsel, Billingsley & Moore, of Lisbon, against Robert B. George and others, praying for the partition and equitable relief in lots 571-573 in R. C. Taggart's fifth addition in East Palestine.

Bible Reading Record.

The Young People's society of the Church of the Nazarene, of Lisbon, who have been conducting a Bible reading contest, read a total of 2,406 chapters. The contest began in January, and the number of chapters so far read is declared by the Rev. G. B. Schlosser, pastor of the church, to be a record for Bible reading in this country.

County Home Inmate Dies. John McIntire, 62 years old, former resident of New York state, died Sunday in the county home of bronchitis. He was buried Monday. This is the second death to occur at the home during the past three weeks.

New Gland
Treatment
Discovered

By a new discovery the vital gland substance may now be supplied in tablet form. This method of treatment is highly recommended by European and American scientists who have proved that the internal administration of gland extract has a very marked effect upon the corresponding glands of the human body, often awakening them to normal activity.

Glandogen, the new scientific gland tonic, which is prepared in convenient tablet form, for men and for women, provides a simple method of taking glandular extract. Accept no substitutes. Insist on genuine Glandogen, the original gland tonic.

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda
For fifty years genuine "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentation in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty-cent bottles, any drug-store.

a Record
Breaking Year
... and a still Greater Year to Come

With sales in excess of 250,000 cars, Dodge Brothers, Inc. have just completed the greatest year in their history.

Had it been possible to produce cars in sufficient numbers, their increase over 1924 would have been even more substantial.

This year the production problem has been mastered. A $10,000,000 expansion program stands completed—and the enormous output of 1925 will be nearly doubled!

Production on this stupendous scale makes possible the astounding low prices announced January 7th.

It makes them possible even though the car is better today than ever before. These are but a few of the vital refinements—

Rich and attractive new colors.
Absolute smoothness of engine operation.
A new snap and elasticity of operation throughout.
Smart and stylish new body lines.

Complete vision from every angle of the sturdy all-steel body.

Dodge Brothers Motor Car has always been an exceptional product. With these refinements, at these new prices, it is without question the greatest value Dodge Brothers have ever offered.

Warns Grange Not To Start Professional Football War

New York Club Owner Points Out Perils of Independent Venture

"Red" Will Find Player Market Pretty Low, Says Tim Mara, of Giants, Even if he Could Locate Adequate Grounds as Most Stars Will Stick to Sure Thing With Present Organization.

By Davis J. Walsh.
NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—"Red" Grange is a fine boy and a great athlete, but he has fallen into the hands of the Philistines. If he comes into New York for a professional football war, he'll lose his shirt and that magic '77' along with it. All that money he is supposed to have made this year will float right out of the window."

Tim Mara, principal backer of the New York club of the National Professional league, made this statement today. A Philistine, according to Webster, is "one not appreciating the nobler aspirations and sentiments of humanity." Webster didn't add that a Philistine was one who failed to hold a franchise in the National Professional Football league, but Mr. Mara knows that he means well.

In fact, he agreed that the hands of a Philistine might prove more kindly than those of a receiver.

"And that's no joke," he added. "I didn't make enough money last year to stuff a hat brim. I remember one game where our net profits were something like $105, which was absurd compared to what the players got. Of course, we expect to do better next year, but it's a cinch the revenue won't increase to the point where there will be room for two clubs. Under those conditions, all of Jake Ruppert's money could hardly save Grange from going broke?"

Mara had just returned from Detroit where he successfully opposed

Grange's attempt to obtain a franchise in the league, for operation at the Yankee stadium. Grange's reply was a threat to operate here independently. Mara says he wishes him all the luck in the world because he feels that Harold will need more than that. "I can see that brand new bankroll of his melting right away," he said. "If he attempts to go it alone here, he will have the same chance of an independent running against a solid organization, to wit: none."

If he tried to organize a rival league he will find the player market pretty low, even if he could locate adequate grounds in paying cities, which I doubt. The thing would mean the lining up of 150 players for eight clubs and I don't think there is anything like that many good ones available.

Of course, he might get the services of a few stars. So did the Federal league in baseball and most of its backers lost plenty. The playing strength would remain with us, knowing from experience that we can meet our obligations.

Incidentally, I'm far from alone in my stand against an invasion of New York territory. President Carr has telephoned me with the assurance that the league is behind me to a man. As for the report that Grange and his man, Pyle, might persuade the Chicago Bears to desert in a body, I am pleased to say that they told me they are with the New York Giants one hundred per cent."

CHRISTIANS WIN CAGE TILT

Defeat Lutheran Quint By Decisive Score.

The Christians swamped the Lutherans, 43 to 15, in a Sunday school league clash last night on the Odd Fellows' court. The score was 43 to 15.

The Lutherans were lacking in the team work that customarily characterized their performances, missing badly the services of R. Woessner, who was unable to play last night.

The Christians set the pace throughout, leading at the half by a 25-10 count.

Fears Her Amateur Standing May be Affected.

By Frederick K. Abbott.

CANNES, Feb. 9.—Helen Wills is worried today lest her amateur standing will be effected by a deal made by "movie" men to film the anticipated Wills-Lenglen match.

William Blumenthal of New York is reported to have paid $20,000 for the exclusive motion picture rights to this match. As the result of this deal six American motion picture operators have been excluded from the courts of the Carlton club. They have made a bitter protest to the management of the Carlton hotel, which disclaims responsibility, declaring that the tennis courts are rented out to the Burke family, professional tennis players.

When Miss Wills was informed of the situation she was most angry.

"I don't want any incident of this sort which may reflect upon my amateur standing," she said. "It would be injurious to me to play in a tournament where money is demanded for the movie rights."

"Wherever I have played in America all motion picture men have been allowed to take all the pictures they wanted, even at the biggest matches at Forest Hills."

"I can't believe that the International Amateur Tennis Federation would allow such a thing."

Mme. Lenglen is less perturbed, merely stating, "I never worry about the cinema pictures."

Whether the contract for the exclusive rights to the pictures will be cancelled, remains to be seen, but it is entirely possible that if Miss Wills is advised that her amateur standing is jeopardized that she may refuse to play under such conditions.

After her brilliant showing yesterday the odds against Miss Wills to beat Mme. Lenglen had shortened from 7 to 1, to 5 to 1.

FARLEY TO HEAD GLOVE RULERS

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—James A. Farley, re-appointed with William Muldoon to the New York state athletic commission, was expected to be re-elected chairman today at the scheduled meeting of the board. The term of George E. Brower, third member of the commission, has another year to run. Ordinarily, the post of chairman rotates from one member to another and, in such a case, Muldoon would be in line for the position. But reports in boxing circles were to the effect that Farley was due for re-election.

Bishops Out to Wreck Foes' Title Aspirations

DELAWARE, O., Feb. 9.—Ohio Wesleyan's basketball team, although twice defeated early in the Buckeye Athletic association race, promises to prove a stumbling block to many foes with championship hopes throughout the remainder of the season.

Coach B. F. Van Ayste has developed four new players two of whom varsity are Charles Stone, Delaware; Harry Borno, Mansfield, forwards;

Robert Helwig, Springfield, and Eddie Blickle, Irontown, guards. Veterans playing with the new combination are Captain William Turney, Delaware, center, and Emerald Lammie, Ostrander, forward.

Baseball Prophet Picks Yankees To Finish Near Top Next Season

Washington, Having Reached Peak, is Due For a Break, in Opinion of Athletic Stars.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Apparently some members of the Athletics ball club esteem the 1926 chanc of the New York Yankees more highly than either New York or the Yanks themselves. The general impression here is that the boys will do well to finish shortly before nightfall, what with an increasing tendency toward middle age and a vast uncertainty concerning the ability of the infield.

However, Gordon Cochrane, young catcher with the Athletics, does not concur with this sentiment. In 1925, his first season on the big time, Cochrane proved the fair-haired boy of American league catchers; so perhaps he knows his book, at that.

Anyhow, he picked the Yanks to run one-two-three and intimated that they might be the Athletics' most dangerous rival. He neglected to state just why this should be so. Probably the reason is something to do with the fact that little-neck clams wear oversize collars.

However, Eddie Rommel, batter-mate of Cochrane, also seems to fancy

the Yanks. He named the Athletics to win, as a matter of course, and then swings one from his heels by nominating the White Sox. Yankees and champion

Senators to follow in the order named.

Seemingly, Rommel looks with little favor upon the Detroit Tigers and St.

Louis Browns, generally regarded as deserving a place among the logical contenders. It is possible, also, that his ranking of the Senators may prove slightly irritating to Washington

But, so the billboards assure us, there is always a reason and Edward has several. He is quoted as saying,

among other things:

"The Chicago White Sox must be

Write it

on the ice!

THIS talk about you "never could smoke a pipe" . . . write it on the ice! Sure, you can smoke a pipe. It's just a matter of picking the packing. Dig up that old jimmy-pipe and start fresh . . . with Prince Albert. That's the prescription that has brought pipe-joy to millions.

P. A. is so genuinely friendly. It hits your smoke-spot in deep center right off the bat. Doesn't bite your tongue or parch your throat, because the Prince Albert process said "nix on the rough stuff" right at the beginning. Just cool contentment in every puff—the urge to load up and light up again and again.

Don't put off till tomorrow what you can smoke today. Get a tidy red tin of P. A. now. Snap back the hinged lid and release that wonderful fragrance. Tamp a load into the bowl of your jimmy-pipe and light up. Now you've got it . . . that taste. Say—isn't that the goods, now?

FRAME NEW PLAN FOR TITLE BOUT

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—It seemed probable today that a match between Jack Delaney and Mike McGlone, with the winner to meet Paul Berlenbach for the light heavyweight title, would prove the solution of the McGlone-Berlenbach controversy, which has resulted in the state athletic commission ordering the champion to remain inactive in local rings until he fights McGlone.

Another result was the scheduling of a series of bouts for Berlenbach outside New York, Paul expressing an unwillingness to box McGlone again because he felt that bout wouldn't prove a good drawing card.

Delaney, however, has offered to meet the Irishman in an elimination match and this may prove satisfactory to the commission.

LOCAL BOWLERS ENTER TOURNEY

At Least Two Five-man Teams to Roll at Pittsburgh.

At least two and possibly more East Liverpool duckpin teams will take part in the Tri-State pin tournament to be staged March 8 to 13 at the Club Alleys, Pittsburgh.

Local bowlers received notice of the tourney dates today.

According to present plans, Flemings and the Liberty alleys will enter teams for competition in singles, doubles and five-man events, and there is a possibility that other local squads will take part.

"Keeper of Bees," Film Classic, to be Shown at Ceramic

The Ceramic theatre, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, will present the screen version of "The Keeper of the Bees," Gene Stratton-Porter's recent novel ever written of Southern California, with the gorgeous background of mountains and ocean. Doubleday, Page & Co., have just put the book on the market, and the publishers estimate that more than ten million persons have already found the story as fascinating as only a novel by the late Mrs. Porter could be.

In addition to its tremendous popularity, "The Keeper of the Bees" has as one of its stars an eleven year old girl who has never before been seen in pictures, and who probably never will be again, despite the fact that she is bound to make a tremendous hit.

Gene Stratton-Porter, granddaughter of the noted novelist, enacts the part of "Little Scout," the role which inspired her celebrated grandmother to write the story originally. So when she "steals" the picture from more experienced members

BUSINESS MEN IN BASKETBALL

Chester and Local Teams Meet at Park Tomorrow.

An interesting cage clash not on the schedules is billed for tomorrow afternoon at Rock Springs park.

Chester and East Liverpool business men will make up the two teams entered in the event.

The West Virginia delegation will include Chester business men and their clerks.

They will be pitted against the stars of the East Liverpool wholesale produce bazaar.

The battle will start at 2 o'clock.

It will be staged on the dance pavilion floor at the park.

By the recent consolidation of 19 towns with Genoa, that city of Italy has 15 miles of coast line and a population of 542,000.

of a fine cast, it is only proper; for "The Keeper of the Bees" is her property anyway.

The production, which has been ably directed for F. B. O. by J. Leo Meehan, who will be remembered for his fine work in transplanting "The Girl of the Limberlost."

Local bowlers received notice of the tourney dates today.

According to present plans, Flemings and the Liberty alleys will enter teams for competition in singles, doubles and five-man events, and there is a possibility that other local squads will take part.

EDGAR V. LYNCH,
69, DEAD HERE

Retired Business Man
Dies After Illness of Three Years.

Edgar V. Lynch, 69 years old, retired business man, died last night at his home, Dunn street and Indiana avenue, following an illness of three years.

Mr. Lynch, who came here five years ago from Pittsburgh, is survived by his widow, Lourena Garrett Lynch, one brother, W. C. Lynch, Chester, and one sister, Mrs. F. C. Meckley, Manor, Pa.

He was a member of the First Presbyterian church of Chester, F. & A. M. No. 252; Olean, N. Y.; St. John's Commandery No. 54; Knights Templar, Olean, N. Y., and Royal Arcanum No. 807, Scottsdale, Pa.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the home of W. C. Lynch, 1002 Neptune Avenue, in charge of Rev. W. T. McKee, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and Rev. F. C. Roberts, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal church. The body will be taken to Brownsville, Pa., Thursday morning where private interment will take place.

Friends are requested to omit flowers.

SPECIAL NIGHTS
AT MEETS HERE

Large crowd attended the revival services last evening in the First Methodist Episcopal church which was observed as "Sunday School Night." Teachers, officers and members of the respective classes were present.

Epworth League members will attend the meeting tonight in a body. They will sing a song dedicated to the organization entitled "My Very Best For Jesus." Rev. R. C. Ehrhart, pastor of the church, will have as his sermon subject, "Prepare To Meet Thy God."

MEETS LAUNCHED
BY EVANGELIST

Rev. H. N. Dickerson, of Ashland, Ky., spoke last night at the revival meetings in the Church of the Nazarene. He was unable to reach the city Sunday and the opening sermon was given by Rev. Lulu Kell, pastor of the Newell Nazarene church.

The meetings will continue for several weeks with prayer services preceding the services. The Hutchinson sisters will sing at all the services.

Ten Days for Filing. Candidates for office at the municipal election must have their petition filed not later than February 19, which is 20 days prior to the election.

It is expected that several more aspirants will announce their candidacy this week.

10 Years Younger
in 10 Days—

You, too, can have hair free from those telltale streaks of gray—hair glowing with health and youthful beauty. Just make this test—as thousands of men and women have done. Get a bottle of Kolor-Bak and use as directed. This wonderful preparation is not sticky or messy to apply—just a clean, colorless, pleasant liquid almost like water. But it has the remarkable power to restore any gray hair to its natural shade. Kolor-Bak does not change the hair coloring instantly, as do ordinary dyes. It works more gradually, yet a week often suffices to accomplish desired results. And when restoring the color, it also acts as a tonic, rooting dandruff and giving the hair a lustrous, soft texture.

Ask for Kolor-Bak today. No sample necessary. The same bottle is for any gray hair. If desired results do not appear, we will return your money. Guarantee in each package.

MAYOR BENEDUM WARS ON PEDDLERS

TODAY

Shopping in Millions.
What Brokers Borrowed.
Not Lost, Misled.
Mussolini Thunders.

(The opinions expressed in this column are not those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

High finance goes shopping, in these days of powerful credit and big industrial units, on a wholesale scale.

All records for "cash buying" were broken in the purchase of Associated Oil control for $165,000,000 cash. That's a sum equal to the great fortune of the Rothschilds—now small change for Ford or Rockefeller.

Gold, that brought the forty-niners to California, represents a small part of the state's wealth. Besides Associated Oil there are many California oil companies. If the right to "control" or a little more than half of one of them, is worth one hundred and sixty-five millions, how much must all of the oil of California be worth?

Investigating brokers' loans in New York shows $3,513,174,154 borrowed by the brokers to "carry" stocks for their customers on margin.

Three thousand five hundred and thirteen million dollars is a large sum. But it is small compared with this country's total wealth. The brokers' borrowing was used mainly by the bears in an effort to injure stock prices. The three and a half billions represent only 6 per cent of total stock values listed on the exchange.

This is no time to sell short in this country. Don't gamble. That always ends badly.

Lloyd George says: "The world is losing its ideals. Liberalism throughout the whole world has fallen on evil."

In Italy he saw newspaper suppressed, men elected, then thrown out of office by force, but, says he, the Italian people like it and prosper under it.

"Italy is prospering, mills and factories are throbbing with life, new works are springing up everywhere, old industries are reviving."

The world has often seemed to "lose its ideals" when it has only mislead them, temporarily. A respectable gentleman in a rough and tumble fight, rolling into the gutter, loses his dignity as he straightens out his collar, necktie, etc.

But he is all right after awhile.

The nations of Europe have been rolling in the gutter, cutting each other's throats. Now a reversion to Toryism and dictatorship is the order of the day. Nations and individuals will return gradually to old ways of thinking and living.

Mussolini, shaking his fist at Germany, tells the Italian parliament: "We are not afraid and won't budge an inch from our policy."

This threat refers to trouble about the Brenner pass in the Tyrol.

Mussolini says Italy's flag shall stay there, and, if necessary, he will carry it forward into German territory.

Italy's deputies, delighted, greeted Mussolini with thunders of applause and "Long live the duce."

Executive Instructs Police to Make Arrests.

No Licenses Will be Issued to Vendors During Tenure.

Mayor Ralph C. Benedum today declared war against peddlers, beggars and street loafers. He instructed the police department to arrest all suspicious persons.

Since assuming office on January 1, Benedum has refused permits to more than a score of vendors and cripples who sought to operate here, he said.

Arrests Ordered

"We have merchants here who pay taxes and help support our city and for the next two years, at least, East Liverpool will be closed to peddlers," the mayor said. "I have issued orders to the police to arrest all persons who attempt to operate in a house-to-house business without a permit."

For the last several months, according to the mayor, this city has been overrun with peddlers and cripples who usually are found on sidewalks in the business district dealing in lead pencils, shoe strings, postcards and other merchandise.

"If I am asked for a permit by a cripple, who is unable to work for a livelihood, I offer to send him to the county infirmary if he is a resident of the county, but under no circumstances will I grant permits to beg on the streets," the mayor declared. "The bars have been down to this class of people here lately but henceforth there will be no stop-overs here."

Cites Two Typical Cases

A few weeks ago, an Allance woman asked the mayor for a permit to solicit funds for a welfare organization which was incorporated under the state laws about 10 years ago. She admitted upon questioning that even though the campaign for funds had been in progress since then no missions had been established.

When the mayor suggested that he would communicate with the mayor of Allance to ascertain the worthiness of the organization, the applicant said that Allance authorities "do not understand our work" and that they would not recommend it. She was refused a permit.

Salem Man Goes To Reformatory for Attempted Hold-up

Harold Thompson, Salem, indicted for assault with intent to rob, in connection with the attempted hold-up of Joshua Hoopes, of Winona, last November, was sentenced to serve from one to 15 years in the Mansfield reformatory by Judge E. R. Eastman, Ottawa, in common pleas court, Lisbon, yesterday.

Thompson was indicted on four counts by the January grand jury. He pleaded guilty.

Three companions who are alleged to have been implicated in the attempted robbery of Hoopes were given reformatory sentences last week.

The sentence of this court is that you shall be committed to the workhouse for 60 days, or until your fine and costs are paid.

Negro Convicted Of Assaulting Girl Sentenced to Hang

NEW CASTLE, Del., Feb. 9.—William Butler, 21, Negro, is back in a cell in the workhouse here today following his conviction in Georgetown of criminally assaulting Leonora Steinmetz, 12, on January 21. He will hang "at a convenient place in Sussex county" between the hours of 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. on February 26. A jury convicted him in one and half minutes.

Butler was whisked out the back door of the court house in Georgetown secretly while 2,000 persons milled about the front. He felt greatly relieved when he was away from the Georgetown mob, but seemed uninterested as to his fate.

SENATE ASKS COAL STRIKE INTERVENTION

Appeals to Coolidge After Reversing Itself.

COPELAND'S PLAN

Adoption of Resolution Follows Flurry of Debate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—President Coolidge would not commit himself this afternoon on the senate's request that he abandon his policy of "hands off" the anthracite coal strike, and invite the operators and miners to a joint conference at the White House to settle the strike.

News of the senate's adoption of the Copeland resolution was communicated to Mr. Coolidge at the conclusion of the cabinet meeting and he told inquirers he would give it "careful consideration."

The resolution specifically requested Mr. Coolidge to initiate action which will settle the strike.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Reversing itself completely, the senate today requested President Coolidge to intervene in the anthracite coal strike, by calling the operators and miners to the White House for a conference.

The senate's action was taken by the adoption of the Copeland resolution, which it twice voted down last week.

Its adoption followed a flurry of debate, in which administration leaders characterized the move as "futile" and sought to prevent its passage as an embarrassment to the administration, but the Democrats rallied around the resolution and, supported by the insurgents, it went over, 54 to 21.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Feb. 9.—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, was "interested" in the action of the United States senate today in demanding President Coolidge to call a coal conference, but, according to his secretary, he had no comment to make.

CHARGE MAN WITH EMPIRE THEFTS

Two more robberies have been attributed to Jefferson county police authorities to Ray Blair, alias Ray Blaire, whose real name is understood to be Ray Smith, and who was arrested recently in Steubenville following a number of apartment house burglaries.

On December 12 he is alleged to have secured more than $50 at houses at Empire and Stratton by representing himself to be a gas inspector. How King, alleged to be Blaire's accomplice, who is charged with impersonating an officer, was released from the county jail this morning on $500 bond.

Blair's connection with the two robbery series at Stratton and Empire was discovered by County Detective Campbell and Constable Houser yesterday afternoon. On December 12 it is claimed that Blaire entered the home of Mill Gillespie, at Empire, and removed $50, after having displayed a badge and telling the occupants that he was an inspector for the gas company. From the home of Hermon Nixon, at Stratton, he is said to have secured $24.15 by the same deceit.

Q. What has become of the old Surratt house in Washington? M. B. A. During 1915 the famous old Surratt house, which was located on H street, was remodeled into a store and apartment house. It was in this house that the conspiracy to assassinate Lincoln was discussed by John Wilkes Booth and others. The structure had stood intact for nearly sixty

Q. What is the difference between a kingdom and an empire? M. T. J.

years. It was here in the parlor on the second floor that some of the conspirators met and held conferences. John Wilkes Booth went to this house on the afternoon preceding the assassination. There he arranged for horses and guns to use in his flight. The house was the residence of Mrs. Mary Surratt. She conducted it in Civil war times as a boarding house for theatrical people, one of her patients being John Wilkes Booth.

Q. Are any of the ordinary light rays lost when an electric light bulb is placed behind a piece of clear plate glass? F. J. F.

A. The Bureau of Standards says that the transmission factor of smooth clear glass is about 92 per cent in perpendicularly incident light, the loss being that reflected at the two surfaces. The amount of light transmitted varies with the angle of incidence and the refractive index of the glass. The reflector will absorb from 10 to 40 per cent of the light incident upon it, depending upon its surface.

Q. In what airship accident did the greatest loss of life occur? H. K.

A. The Roma disaster on Feb. 21, 1922, near Hampton Roads perhaps incurred the greatest loss of life in an airship disaster. Out of 45 men aboard, only 11 were saved and most of them seriously wounded.

Q. How did the controversy between Virginia and West Virginia as to West Virginia's debt to the older state turn out? J. B. E.

A. In April 1919, Virginia brought suit against West Virginia for her debt to Virginia which was $14,562,867.16 on April 1, 1919. The Supreme Court declared West Virginia liable and the debt has since been funded.

Q. When did Moody and Sankey make their tour of the British Isles? M. C.

A. The great evangelical tour of Dwight Moody and Ira D. Sankey in Great Britain took place in 1873 to 1875.

Q. What state is most densely populated? C. D.

A. Rhode Island leads in density of population per square mile with an average of 566.4. Massachusetts following with 479.2. The District of Columbia outstrips all the states with 7,272.9 persons to the square mile. The average for the whole United States is 35.5.

Q. What was the best port of entry in colonial days? S. E. B.

A. During the early colonial period, Boston engrossed almost the entire trade of the colonies, but was soon rivaled by New York, Baltimore, Norfolk, Charleston, South Carolina, and the little seaports on the New England coast. Boston was in 1840 selected as the American terminus of the Cunard Line, the first regular line of trans-Atlantic steamers.

It is often surprising how quickly the heaviest cough disappears when treated by a remarkable new method.

Here is the method, based on the famous Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs:

You simply take one teaspoonful and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals irritation, but also loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which are the real cause of the coughing. So the severest cough soon disappears completely.

Dr. King's New Discovery is for coughs, chest colds, bronchitis, spasmodic croup, etc. Fine for children, too—no harmful drugs. Very economical, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for

NEW SPRING HATS FOR GIRLS

These Madge Evans hats are made specially for girls. Just as Parisian milliners concentrate their clever brains and their magically swift needles on the creation of women's hats, so the Madge Evans Hat Company spends all its time designing pretty hats for girls.

Mothers who buy their own hats from Paris appreciate genuine style—and for this reason buy Madge Evans hats for their daughters at the store in their locality because they know how important to a girl's likeable appearance these hats are and how charmingly they are made.

There are Madge Evans hats for girls as young as four—as "grown up" as eighteen; styles for day and school, styles for party and dress wear—styles to go everywhere.

The new hats for Spring are developed of fancy braids, taffeta and ribbon. Novel trimming features—cunning shapes—altogether smart and youthful.

Some of the colors are blues, rose, tan, red, green and henna. Priced from $4.50 to $6.00.

Other Spring hats for girls priced from $2.95 to $4.50. Second Floor, Main Store.

5,427 PUPILS ENROLLED HERE, MCVAY REPORTS

High Mark Reached in Schools During January.

ATTENDANCE 91.9

Almost 900 Students in Four Class of High School.

Enrollment in the East Liverpool district schools reached a high mark during the month ending January 29, according to the report of Superintendent Charles S. McVay.

The total enrollment is 5,427. The monthly enrollment was 5,152, as compared with 4,709, the record for January of last year, of an increase of 443. Of this number, approximately 100 are students in the part time school which was not established until the beginning of the 1925-26 term. Deducting this the increased enrollment is approximately 343.

Perfect attendance for the month was attained by 2,363 pupils, while the percentage of attendance was 91.9. Cases of tardiness numbered 176, while 257 home visits were made by the teachers. Patrons who visited the schools numbered 484. Superintendent McVay made 109 visits.

The enrollment by buildings follows: High school, 878; Central, 499; Garfield, 465; Sixth street, 418; Horace Mann, 375; Neville, 357; Lincoln, 350; Pleasant Heights, 337; Grant, 17; McKinley, 301; Washington, 235; Maplewood, 162; Third street, 155; Glenmoor, 137; Klondyke, 135; West End, 87; Walkers, 79; Trentvale, 64; Dixonville, 42; Gardendale, 34.

Safe and Sane Fourth Ordinance

The city council, aiming to make the next Fourth of July in East Liverpool "safe and sane," has under consideration an ordinance, sponsored by Solon Thomas Farrall, which prohibits the use of fireworks within the municipal limits, but the proposed legislation makes no reference to the sale of pyrotechnics.

In order to hear protests against the measure, which are expected to be made by dealers, the ordinance's passage was delayed until the next session after it was recently placed on second reading. It is expected to be adopted on Thursday evening, Feb. 17.

The consensus of opinion is that restrictions on fireworks are necessary if the toll of Independence Day accidents is to be decreased, but it is doubtful whether the ordinance now under consideration shall prove effective. If fireworks are sold, it is a foregone conclusion that they will be discharged by adults as well as boys and girls. And East Liverpool's small police force will be unable to cope with the problem of enforcing the enactment.

According to the American museum of safety and the national committee for the prevention of blindness, fireworks celebrations killed 111 persons and injured 1,030 others last Fourth of July in 500 cities in 36 states. And this report is far from complete, for in some southern cities where there is little restriction on fireworks, no statistics at all were obtainable.

Some claim that more people have been killed and wounded in celebrating Independence Day since 1876 than were killed and wounded in the Revolutionary war.

And, it is interesting to note, the figures indicate the greatest number of accidents occur in towns where the safe and sane Fourth is not yet established.

The sensible thing to do is to outlaw the dangerous pyrotechnics, from a sale as well as a use standpoint, and devise safer ways of celebrating the birthday of American independence.

Rus In Urbe

Perhaps an apology is due for the Latin words above. But there is a certain felicity in them that is hard to express in four syllables of English. The old Roman poet Horace is said to have used the phrase to describe the little Villa the Emperor Augustus gave him in the suburbs. He said it was "country in town." It gave him all the advantages of the city along with those of rural life.

If our civilization ever turns to Latin mottoes again, this will be appropriate for millions of Americans. You see the tendency as plain as a pikestaff. The latest scientific prophecy suggests that "country in town" is going to have an amazing extension in the future.

Tesla, the great electrical inventor, predicts that a natural development of radio will enable people to see, by means of a little instrument carried in their pockets, what is going on at a distance, as in a magic crystal. Thus we shall see presidents inaugurated, world's series played, battles fought, dramas performed, etc., as though we were present.

It doesn't seem impossible. And added to present radio facilities and means of transportation, it points to a future of "decentralization" of which our cities have never dreamed. People can live in the most remote places as in the presence of urban life, remaining there in comfort and going back and forth at will.

Select your forest nook, mountain top, desert or sea island, build a cottage there and label it "Rus in Urbe."

Kentucky's Preventative Progress

During the trial and sentence of a murderer at Lexington, Ky., the other day, the guilty man was protected by 1,000 militia, with machine guns and whippet tanks.

The size and quality of the protective forces may seem a little excessive to some parts of the country. Yet the move made by Gov. Fields was undoubtedly a good one. Not only did it protect that particular murderer from mob violence. It also protected the members of the potential mob from the brainstorms, the soiled hands and remorse which would have been their portion had they joined a lynching riot. It set a precedent for the decent and dignified process of administering justice in Lexington, Ky. And it set an example for the whole country to follow under similar circumstances.

The only way to stop lynchings is before they begin. Kentucky has shown the world that she has the gumption to do that very thing.

10,000 New Garages

It is estimated that more than one-fourth of the new buildings to be erected in the United States during 1926 are to be garages. About 200,000 will be private garages. Ten thousand will be built for commercial or public service.

For one-fourth of all new buildings to be devoted to the single purpose of housing automobiles seems surprising. But the development of the automobile industry and the increase in the number of car-owners have also been surprising.

As for the 10,000 public garages—that number may seem small. How to house for the day automobiles that come into large business centers is already a burdensome problem to many communities. It will take not only more garages but probably new types of garages taking up less ground space than at present to house such cars in the future.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Bulgarian Art

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 9.—Historians and others who have made a part of Bulgaria have always for the most part devoted themselves solely to the political and militaristic side of that nation. The Bulgarians themselves are anxious that the world should realize that their interests have not been entirely of this nature. They wish to call attention to the fact that they have long had a native art culture.

That this might be done a committee of scholars and artists was appointed some time ago, through the efforts and research of which it was possible to publish an illustrated book which tells the story of early Bulgarian art.

Professor Dr. Bogdan D. Flory, Director of the National Museum in Sofia, and the author of the work referred to, says in the preface that it is incorrect to consider it as proved that the Bulgarians took all their intellectual culture and material civilization from Byzantium and merely made it their own.

The fact that the Bulgarians were the first of the Slavonic peoples to create a literature of their own which they transmitted to other Slavs, he continues, "should of itself be sufficient proof that, in intellectual domain, they maintained their independence of Byzantium and endeavored to preserve their own national character. They were also the first Slav nation to found an entirely independent national church."

Dr. Flory questions whether the Bulgarians could have maintained their position as the only great power in the Balkan peninsula co-existent with the Byzantine Empire, if they had depended merely upon their military excellences. He says that the numerous ancient Bulgarian monuments of art found in Danubian Bulgaria and Thrace, as well as in Macedonia, indicate that this land was not only drenched with their blood for centuries, but also fertilized by their intellect.

The archaeological importance of Bulgarian monuments of art has been recognized by scholars outside of Bulgaria. A well-known Russian art historian spent considerable time investigating these monuments and voiced his opinion that "in Bulgaria it is not a question of any local form of Byzantine art, which, influenced by Constantinople though not having originated there, proved itself so strong and vigorous, that even under Turkish rule it continued to flourish and produce works of art of no small importance."

Diverse Artistic Currents

The geographical position of Bulgaria greatly affected the art of the country. Being situated close to the most important centers of the culture of antiquity, Bulgaria was an important meeting point for different artistic currents, and the effects of these may easily be traced in the native art.

Greek art penetrated into Bulgaria and the products of Ionian art of Asia Minor, especially, found their way into all parts of the country. At the same time, however, there existed in the interior a highly developed native art which had been taken there by the ancient Thracians. It has only been in recent times that much information regarding this has been available.

Discoveries made in the burial mounds of southern Bulgaria show that it was peculiar in style and wholly unlike Greek art. It suggested the Scythian objects of art found in the south of Russia, and was chiefly characterized by a fondness for fantastic representations of animals.

When Bulgaria became a Roman province at the beginning of the first century after Christ, the Roman influence is shown in the art of that country. This influence is particularly noticeable in the tombstones, which were at first very simple, becoming more and more richly decorated. This native art, which was strongly influenced by Greek and Roman models, reached its highest development in the second century after Christ.

During the third century the native

art began to be barbarized. The classical antique features gave way before a rough, naive peasant art which spread over the entire country. During the fourth century tomb-paintings reached a high standard of development, and these new tombstones replaced the earlier ones which had been decorated with reliefs.

The new art was most pronounced in architecture. During the period between the fourth and seventh centuries a succession of magnificent church buildings were erected. These were of many types and showed that the early Christian buildings in Bulgaria were greatly influenced by the contemporary architecture of the East.

This short summary of Bulgaria's art affords a better understanding of ancient Bulgarian art. This is belonged to the period before the Kingdom of Bulgaria was established but it created art traditions that produced a strong after-effect in later periods.

A Versatile Ruler

The glorious age of the first Bulgarian Kingdom is declared to have been the reign of Czar Simeon the Great (888-927). Simeon was educated in Constantinople and was not only a capable warrior and statesman, but also a great patron of art and science.

A contemporary writer describes his court as being exceptionally brilliant, gold and silver, stones of different colors, marble, and copper, wall-paintings and wood-carving being used in profusion to decorate the rooms. All that remains of this are a few capitals and richly decorated slabs from a marble frieze, together with some less important architectural fragments.

While these slabs are suggestive of oriental types, on the whole they retain the original features of the earliest Bulgarian art.

The ruins of a monastery have been discovered on top of a thickly wooded hill near Patleima. Although the church is quite an insignificant building.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McIntyre

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 9.—It is something like the Cherbourg break waters here. Passengers are transported from liners by tender. Seaplanes buzzing over head rain real estate epidodes. The harbor is a beautiful aqua-marine blue and for one of those unromantic souls who can take a sun or let it alone, I'll say this sun down here is gorgeous. It has a way

You think of Urban, Fogany and

Bel Geddes dishing out a new effect in lighting. Puffs of clouds, egg beaten white, haze across clear skies. California offers the same idea, plus the imperious snow-capped Sierras. Florida and California should never quarrel. They are sisters under the sun.

The beach at Miami spreads a sand whiteness a shimmering background of glossy new architecture dotted with palm fronds. Ten years ago a sleepy little town of 5,000 nestled in the swamps. Today Greater Miami—as modern as any American city—has 200,000 inhabitants and continues to expand.

Miami does not belong particularly to Florida any more than Los Angeles belongs to California. Each belongs to the world as striking examples of American magic. In the pier sheds were the usual realty hustlers and binder boys—the gleaners who trail the path of every land boom.

Also the homesick you see in every port, hungering for a friendly face from home. It was a slice of Times Square to see Wells Hawks, with an autumn leaf tan, on hand to greet the trouper. He is the dean of Broadway's army of press agents.

A stranger is offered the courtesy of many automobiles free. Enroute, however, to wherever you are going you are deftly maneuvered for a look—you don't have to buy but take a look—at one of those realty projects in the throes of incubation.

Along the causeway leading from Miami to Miami Beach were shirt-sleeved fishermen, casting for perch, and on the asphalt sidewalk lots of fish were flapping to death. In frequent traffic halts I saw a fisherman land five in quick succession.

One of my fleeting first flash impressions was the lack of hats. Very few people wear them down here. Truly Warner would starve in Florida. Even coats are a rather uncommon sight. The men go to business in golf togs or white trousers and soft-shouldered shirts. The people seem happy and there is that odd buoyancy one always finds in semi-tropical countries.

Everywhere buildings are going up. They work all night. "How are wages?" I asked a native laborer. "Higher than a cat's back," he replied.

The real estate boom has developed a unique manner of approach. Strangers knocking at the door announced purely personal visits with: "I'm not trying to sell anything."

There are very few of these dapper and gaily-habited young men who enhance the cosmopolitan air of Manhattan down here. Instead you see the butler-faced country boys with apple cheeks and the rolling gait of those who follow the south end of a plow in the broiling sun. It is evident they have rushed here hugging dreams of escaping the monotony of farm drudgery. Many will return to an earlier environment reconciled. Thousands are living "off the cuff," or as we say up north, "meowing." And, of course, there are the thousands who have shucked off a mediocre humdrum for the opulence of wealth acquired almost over night.

The ultimate in audacity: I absent-mindedly asked a waiter at luncheon if he had any grape fruit. The same effect is achieved by asking Flo-rida if he has any pretty girls.

METHUSELAH'S WIFE

The Story of a Girl By Edgar Rose Ames Who Married for Money

SEVENTY.

The airplanes had gone thundering back to Chicago, bearing the Follies company. The last guest had departed or been carried away. Sleepy-eyed caterer's assistants were listlessly clearing up the disordered remnants of the feast. Decorations that had seemed so dream-like and fairly-wrought eight hours before, hung tattered and torn and soiled. The rising sun shone through the glass roof over the swimming pool and sparkled upon the water, but over the rest of the recent scene of so much merriment, a pall seemed to hang.

Noble Harwood slowly climbed the stairs, while Louis watched him from below wondering. Noble thought Laurel was in her suite, and he had no desire to face her, though he knew he must. At first he had been angry because she, and his daughters, had fled, but now, as he reflected, his feelings on that score had subsided. If only they had stayed though, it would not have been so bad; for he could have made some people think that Lorraine was only a maudlin guest playing a joke.

Nero fiddled while Rome burned, and Noble Harwood paid fifty-seven thousand dollars to set the stage for a social disaster for himself. That is what the Arabian Nights ball cost him. A bitter smile twisted his mouth as he thought of this, pausing on the uppermost step.

After hesitating at Laurel's door, he stole into his own suite, and sat down, a desolate figure, by his fireplace, first undoing the stays of his costume. . . . He felt very old.

Burnham, entered the room several hours later, found his master sleeping in the chair before the fire, and awakened him: "I thought, sir, that you'd be more comfortable if lying down. Let me help you with your costume, sir."

"What time is it?" Laurel might be awake; he must go and see her. "I'd like some strong coffee. Burnham, and a cold bath."

"But, sir, you'll be most uncomfortable today, unless you rest for several hours in bed. Let me call you at noon, sir."

Noble shook his head. "And ask Ella if Mrs. Harwood is awake."

"Yes, sir."

Let Tanlac restore your health

If your body is all fagged-out and run down, if you are losing weight steadily, lack appetite, have no strength or energy—why not let Tanlac help you back to health and strength?

So many millions have been benefited by the Tanlac treatment, so many thousands have written to testify to that that it's sheer folly not to make the test.

Tanlac, you know, is a great natural tonic and builder, a compound, after the famous Tanlac formula, of roots, barks and herbs. It purges the blood stream, revitalizes the digestive organs and enables the sickly body to regain its vanished weight.

You don't need to wait long to get results. Tanlac goes right to the seat of trouble. In a day or so you note a vast difference in your condition. You have more appetite, sleep better at night and the color begins to creep back into your washed-out cheeks.

Don't put off taking Tanlac another precious day. Step into the nearest drug store and get a bottle of this world-famed tonic. That's the first important step back to health and vigor. Every day's delay means unnecessary suffering, for Tanlac starts to clean out and tone up the system right away. And by acting promptly you will avoid further loss of energy and

Gives Tanlac Full Credit

"Before I ran across Tanlac I was all run-down, tired, nervous and with aches of the tummy. I also suffered from indigestion and constipation and had no appetite."

"But now I have nothing to complain of so far as my health is concerned. Tanlac makes me eat better, sleep better, feel better and work better. It keeps me feeling strong, snappy and full of energy."

confident of her mother now.

"No. Come, get up." She led her into the bathroom—bathed her face in cold water, and made her inhale smelling salts.

"Now, Laurel, this is an awful mess, but crying and carrying on, however badly you feel, isn't going to help matters. You need all your strength now, and it will be foolish for you to give up completely to your feelings. I want you to promise me that you won't do anything foolish."

"I'll try, mother."

"I won't allow any of these cats around here to be coming in to bother you, and I want you to take a good rest. Read, or dig in the garden, or anything but think about your troubles."

"I'll try, mother." She was moved to put her arms around her mother and kiss her. "O, you're so good. I don't know what I would have done if I hadn't had you to come to."

But try as she might, Laurel could not keep her mind from wandering back to the events of the awful night. She tried to eat, but she had no appetite. Food was revolting.

She wanted to be alone, to flee where?

What was she to do now? She couldn't live in Central City now—she couldn't. Such a thing was impossible.

And where was she to go?

"Now, Laurel, you're not keeping your promise. You're not to allow yourself to get into those moods."

Laurel, her thoughts thus disturbed, looked up at her mother with eyes that could not keep from moistening.

STIFFNESS AND ACHE GONE IN ONE NIGHT

Sportsman is "as good as new" after one treatment

Sportsmen have learned a simple way to take out pain and stiffness when they get lame up from exposure or over-exertion.

A Philadelphia sportsman writes that he caught cold in his back while out gunning and the next day found himself so stiff and lame he could hardly bend.

"I went to work, but had to come home," he writes. "I applied Sloan's freely and went to bed. The next morning I was as good as new, thanks to the quick and sure action of Sloan's Liniment." (Name and address given on request.)

It is amazing what Sloan's does for any kind of muscular pain. Just pat it on lightly. No need to rub. Sloan's alone does the work.

Instantly it sends a healing tide of fresh, new blood right to the sore spots. Your muscles limber up, stop aching and get back their tone. So clean and pleasant to use, too. Get a bottle today. All druggists—35 cents.

EAST END REVIVAL MEETS CONTINUE HERE

Evangelistic meetings which are in progress at the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church are growing in interest and being largely attended. The sermons are being given by the pastor, Rev. W. C. Stokes.

This evening has been set aside as "Sunday School Night" when members of the various classes, teachers and officers will attend. Tomorrow will be "Family Night" when families of the congregation are expected to be present.

Community Club Meeting.

Juvenile party will be featured this evening at the regular meeting of the Women's Community club in their rooms in Pennsylvania avenue.

To Entertain Class.

Class No. 11 of the Second Presbyterian church will meet Thursday evening with Miss Hilda Johnson at her home in the Northside.

Landfried Funeral Services.

Funeral services for Jacob Landfried, 71 years old, who died Sunday, will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home in Erie street. Rev. A. J. Travis, pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue Church of Christ, will be in charge. Burial will be made in Spring Grove cemetery.

Scouts Attend Jamboree.

East End Boy Scout members were largely represented last night at the district Jamboree held in the Y. M. C. A. Many took part in the various events which comprised the program.

Lodge Meeting Tonight.

Members of Eureka circle No. 86, Protected Home Circle, will meet this evening in the Hill building, Mulberry street. Routine business will be transacted.

"Oh, You Doctor!"
Musical Comedy at
Strand, is Treat

A real treat is in store for musical comedy fans in the bill which is being presented at the Strand theatre for the three first days of the week. It is the Margaret Lillie production, "Oh, You Doctor!"

Twenty clever artists make up the cast. There is comedy and music galore.

A beauty chorus of 10 girls who appear in a half score or more costume changes take part in the show which is presented in two acts. Elaborate stage settings are used in the production.

Among the numerous hits is a male quartet, which were compelled to respond to repeated encores at the three performances yesterday. The show is a riot of fun from start to finish.

The photoplay offering is "How Baxter Butted In."

BOOZE SEIZED, TWO ARRESTED

East Liverpool Man and Woman Held in Beaver.

Mrs. Agnes Vaughn, 314 Crook alley, and Clifford Ohlinger, truck driver, are in the county jail at Beaver, Pa., today awaiting action at the March term of court upon charges of transporting and possessing intoxicating liquors. Their bonds were fixed at $2,000 each by Justice David Stewart, Beaver, upon preliminary arraignment last night.

They were arrested shortly after 12 o'clock Sunday morning when Motorcycle Officer Adam McConaughay, of Beaver, stopped their car as they were passing through Beaver. McConaughay was standing in front of the Beaver municipal building when he noticed a roadster without a tail light pass along the main street.

He gave chase and stopped the car near the borough limits. In the rear compartment of the machine was found 10 five-gallon cans of whisky. The accused said the liquor had been brought in Pittsburgh and was being brought to Midland and East Liverpool.

Mrs. Vaughn told Beaver county officials that the automobile which Ohlinger was driving was the property of her son. The car is being held by the authorities until this report is verified.

Police say that Mrs. Vaughn was arrested and fined here several months ago for a liquor violation. An unsuccessful attempt was also made to destroy her home by fire about three months ago.

here when they failed to satisfy the mayor that the money would be used for the announced purpose.

Local vendors of candy, who make daily rounds in potteries and stores, need no permit and will not be molested, the mayor said.

Explanation of Order

"The ban on peddlers is not aimed at residents of East Liverpool, we do not intend to tolerate the carpet bagger, who comes into town, stays for a few days and then moves on to a new field of labor, perhaps, never to return," the mayor said.

The city has no jurisdiction over persons who make a house-to-house canvass seeking orders for brushes, stocking, sheets and other merchandise, which is to be delivered at later date. This, the mayor claims, would interfere with inter-state trade relations.

Ex-service men may obtain a county permit, which permits them to work in any town of the county without a municipal permit, but no one is operating here under the provision of this act of the legislature at the present time, according to the authorities.

30 Crippled Children Here.

"President Coolidge once said that universal education was the greatest gift that America ever made to civilization," said Mrs. Hadley. "It is true that we have universal education but we lack a universal opportunity. Because of physical handicaps many thousands of children are unable to take advantage of that universal education."

"Ohio tries to educate its children who are under physical handicap. A few years ago a limited number of our children were educated but today education is free to all. We have compulsory school laws which require children to attend school."

"In the last year schools for crippled children have been established in Cambridge, Mansfield, Sandusky and Lancaster. Of course, we have schools in the larger cities but I name these four because they are comparable to East Liverpool. You have about 30 crippled children in your community."

"We were told a couple of years ago when a survey was made of the crippled children here that you did not think it timely to educate these children—then first you were interested in bettering their physical condition. The state is willing to bear a large part of the expense in establishing a school for crippled children."

Senior Catholic Prelate Detines Stand On Prohibition

Cardinal O'Connell Says Church Supports Temperance Cause But Opposes Compulsory Enactment

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The pronouncement by Cardinal O'Connell, senior Catholic prelate in America, that the church supports the cause of temperance but is opposed to compulsory prohibition caused a distinct sensation today in the capital.

Coming, as it did, on the heels of the report of the Episcopal Temperance society's report, characterizing Volsteadian prohibition as a failure, and following the research report of the Federal Council of Churches, which expressed grave doubts as to the benefits of drastic prohibition, the O'Connell statement added fuel to the issue that has sporadically burned in the present congress.

Wets and drys alike conceded that, irrespective of whatever other effect the announcement of the church's position may have, it will serve to add enormous impetus and encouragement to the campaign in favor of modification now set for two years hence.

Frank Murphy's Comment. Representative Frank Murphy (R.), of Maryland, the leading spirit of the anti-Voisteaders in congress, characterized Cardinal O'Connell's statement as "unfortunate."

"It is always unfortunate," he said, "to see high grade Christian gentlemen take a position opposed to the law of the land. I believe churchmen who exercise great influence upon people should be more careful and temperate about taking a position against the law."

"Prohibition is here to stay. It took 60 years to put the eighteenth amendment into the constitution. It will never be taken out. Make no mistake about it."

BOSTON, Feb. 9.—In view of the position he occupies as senior prelate of the Roman Catholic church, Cardinal O'Connell's statement against the dry law but in favor of temperance, made public today, was generally accepted as the official attitude of the church.

Cardinal O'Connell said that "compulsory prohibition in general is flatly opposed to the holy scripture." He pointed out that for 1900 years the Catholic church has worked for temperance. But he did not believe in curtailing personal liberty. Cardinal O'Connell held that liquor was not to be blamed for excessive and harmful use by individuals. Drunkenness, however, he termed an ugly vice and he lauded voluntary abstinence.

Ohio tries to educate its children who are under physical handicap. A few years ago a limited number of our children were educated but today education is free to all. We have compulsory school laws which require children to attend school."

Claim Victory for Mussolini. ROME, Feb. 9.—Public ardor aroused on Saturday to a fever pitch by Premier Mussolini's stern warning to Germany, had cooled somewhat yesterday. Whereas, yesterday there was some talk of war possibilities, it was generally admitted today that there is no likelihood of any real difficulties between Germany and Italy.

The German ambassador, Baron von Neurath, who has long been a friend of Premier Mussolini, is said to be acting as intermediary striving to adjust the differences between Berlin and Rome.

The Italian press announces that Mussolini has scored another victory by informing the world that Italy is determined to govern south Tyrol without interference.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Speculative interest was concentrated on the banking stocks, the coppers and high-priced specialties in the early trading today. Heavy selling developed in Ward Banking class stock in the first period, with a further decline of 8 points to 61 1/2, completing a loss of nearly 20 points since the filling of the government's dissolution suit yesterday noon.

California Packing dropped about 4 points to 149, but this stock had the advantage of an official announcement of a contemplated stock split-up and an increase in the cash dividend to $8 a share.

Allied Chemical resumed its aggressive forward movement at the head of the specialties and sold up to 151 for a new high. American Snuff jumped 11 points to 165 in active trading and American Can reached 295 for a gain of 6 points. Under the leadership of Anaconda, Cerro de Pasco and Kennecott, the coppers displayed a firm tone and were well bought at fractional advances above Monday's closing levels. The recent hardening of the copper metal market and the improved outlook for the industry have stimulated considerable speculative buying of copper stocks.

Barthelme Stars
In "Soul Fire," at
American Theatre

Richard Barthelme, in his newest First National production, "Soul Fire," now at the American theatre, is looked upon by critics as the foremost young actor of the screen. Moreover, he is known as the friend of the unknown player.

The young star had a hard struggle before he won stellar honors in the films, and he has not forgotten the trials and tribulations that stud the patch of the cinema newcomer. Many a young player owes his start to Barthelme.

Fred W. Fox, critic and editor of The Film Mercury, made an interesting comment regarding Barthelme in a recent issue.

"To the unknown theree seems to be one hope in the motion picture field," said Mr. Fox, "if we are to judge by consistent adherence to a policy of ability, rather than NAMES. That is Richard Barthelme."

"With Barthelme in 'Classmates' were three stars who virtually knocked the audience for a row of holidays. I'm the bunk when it comes to remembering names, but you doubtless recall the two who played the part of his classmates and Reginald Shefield, who essayed the heavy role. Not one of those three young men meant anything to the box office, but Dick gave them a chance, and if they don't make good it won't be his fault."

"I have watched Richard Barthelme's progress from playing opposite Marguerite Clark in the long ago, through a series of Dorothy Gish comedies, through Griffith leads to his present place, and I know that it will be many long year before the film world gets another boy who has done as much to implant motion pictures in the public regard as he has done."

"Dick Barthelme could be the worst actor on earth and yet he'd be a success for the simple reason that he possesses an all-essential quality that too many of our bygone stellar lights lacked and was their undoing and that is today sending many capable thespians to the junk heap, and that is—sincerity. The fact that he is not a lense hog, a greater-than-thou autocrat, and that he is utterly devoid of that conceit that ruins so many of our actors, has done more for him than a century of billboards."

Haskin's Letter

The wall-paintings of churches are of considerable interest. There are many which were done in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries. Some of these were not discovered until during the World War and although they are much damaged they appear to belong to some of the best work of their kind and have great artistic value. Regarding these wall-paintings, Dr. Filow says, "Considering the material we possess, we are fully justified in speaking even for this period of distinct Bulgarian schools of painting. How far their influence extended, how far they were connected with the other schools of the same period, and after further researches."

CASES DROPPED FROM DOCKET

Actions Dismissed by Judge Moore in Court Here.

For failure to file a petition and also to prosecute the action after it was filed in common pleas court, Judge James G. Moore has dismissed two causes from the docket.

The first one to be taken from the list was that of James Bowers against Henry F. Herbert, which was carried from a court of the justice of the peace on appeal. This claim was for $35 and was filed in common pleas August 30, 1924.

The second case to be dismissed on like cause was that of H. D. McCaren, a minor, by F. J. Dugdale, his next friend against the Buckeye Motor Co. of East Liverpool. This was an action to recover $20 claimed to be due on the sale of a motor vehicle, and was carried to common pleas on appeal from a court of a justice of the peace Sept. 6, 1924.

Dismissed for lack of prosecution is the entry made by the court in the case of the state of Ohio against Theodore R. Sanor, an appeal on a peace warrant, which appeal was filed Oct. 2, 1924.

Strong and Active At 80—No More Sciatica or Arthritis

Amazing and Lasting Relief Through New Magic of ARIUM—Radium in Tablets Without Drugs. Test it Yourself.

,$5000 REWARD IF IT FAILS

"ARIUM ended my sciatica in thirty days and restored the use of my hands to a great extent after they had been useless or nearly so for twelve years from arthritis," says Mr. George A. Mayo of Washington. "I believe that it is my duty to other sufferers to allow you to use my letter as you may see fit. I am a simpleton for I am not strong, as I have been feeling like a new man since using ARIUM. I am 80 years old, but now strong and active."

If you are one of the thousands who are still needlessly suffering untold agony from sharp, stabbing pains, or dull, deadly ache which never seems to leave you, you're steadily losing your youth and usefulness unless you're in terrific torture of sciatica, lumbago, arthritis, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia or gout, you owe it to yourself to try ARIUM at once. Doctors and Hospital Authorities men and women in every walk of life stand unanimous in the way it so quickly reduces inflammation, thereby giving lasting relief from pain. ARIUM actually helps in a definite way to remove the real cause of rheumatism by dissolving the scales which have crystallized around the joints and fibers by holding the salts in solution and thus preventing them from depositing on the bones, the action of ARIUM has proven little short of miraculous—even in seemingly hopeless cases.

A multitude of alarming symptoms quickly disappear. You see and feel a truly startling improvement in yourself each day. The ARIUM is a safe, non-toxic, non-irritating medicine which supplies druggists with ARIUM, guarantees successful and satisfactory results in every case from its progressive use or money refunded, and offers a $5,000.00 Reward if it fails to prove its definite worth. ARIUM is easy and economical to take and may now be readily obtained in this city from my good druggist, who can easily get it for you if he has none in stock.

Resumes Work of Building Homes

Mr. H. D. Mays, of 10 S. 5th St., Martins Ferry, Ohio, resumed his work of building again. Mr. Mays is probably one of the best known contractors of Martins Ferry and vicinity, having resided there and in Wheeling for many years past.

He was a sufferer from rheumatism affecting his entire body with indigestion, poor appetite, gas and all the usual ills accompanying a disordered stomach.

Since taking Ka-d-ol he emphatically declares the rheumatic pains have left him, and his stomach and other organs are functioning perfectly. Since regaining his health he has been actively engaged in his contracting business, which he was not able to properly attend to before. Ka-d-ol will do all that is claimed for it, as thousands of others have testified. Ka-d-ol probably has more true friends than any other remedy of its kind on the market.

Ka-d-ol is sold in East Liverpool at Mathew's Cut Rate Store and other drug stores.

BUILDINGS WILL BE RE-LOCATED

Members of the board of education of St. Clair township held a conference Monday with Prosecuting Attorney Robert M. Brookes and the county commissioners relative to the situation that will prevail when the East Liverpool-Youngstown road is constructed along the property upon which is located Township line school.

The location of the new road will crowd the buildings used for school purposes, the board of education explained, and it was agreed that during the summer period, the buildings would be relocated by the county, so that no inconvenience would arise when grading is in progress. The county commissioners in turn discussed the subject with County Surveyor Lloyd Kirk, and an arrangement has been perfected whereby the desires of the board of education will be agreed to.

FIVE MEN TAKEN TO MANSFIELD

Paul and Raymond McCave of Salem, sentenced by Judge James G. Moore last fall to the Mansfield reformatory, were taken to that institution Monday by Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Kindsvatter and Constable Clarence Wetzel of Center township. Accompanying the McCave brothers were also Raymond Stacey of East Liverpool, Fred Taylor and Russell Kiley of Salem.

Stacey was sentenced for being implicated in the theft of merchandise at East Liverpool, while Taylor and Russell were sentenced upon their plea of guilty to robbing poultry houses.

New Filing Cabinets.

On account of the heavy accumulation of duplicate bills of sale and other court records, the county commissioners are to install new filing cabinets in the office of Clerk of Courts Frank Ballantine. Under the present filing system, there is no place in the office where the new bills of sale can be filed.

Filing cabinets are also to be purchased by the commissioners for the office of County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk, where the accumulation of plans and other records has reached the same stage as in the office of Mr. Ballantine.

Services for Masons.

Rev. R. J. Bennett, pastor of the Lisbon Christian church, will preach a special sermon at the evening service Feb. 21 on the subject, "George Washington as a Mason." The Rev. Bennett has announced that he will send a personal invitation to all members of the Masonic fraternity in Center township to attend this service, which will be featured by a special program of music by the church choir.

Claims Hearing.

County commissioners Monday devoted three hours to the hearing of damage claims on the North Georgetown-East Rochester road and also on the Georgetown-Valley road.

The Georgetown-Valley road will follow a new and more direct line than the present traveled road, the new route having been designed to eliminate many objectionable features now existing on the present route.

Judgment Rendered.

Judge E. R. Eastman has rendered judgment for $1,764 in the case of Andrew Schmidt against Harry A. Inman, which is an action in foreclosure. The court has also found there to be due Elizabeth Aultman on her cross petition an amount of $671.28, with six per cent interest add to both amounts. Foreclosure of mortgage and an order of sale has been ordered by the court.

Application Granted.

The application of the trustees of Middle Sandy Presbyterian church in West township to sell certain property, and the funds to be used in the purchase of a new manse, has been granted by Judge James G. Moore. The trustees propose to sell the old manse and obtain a new and larger one for the use of its pastor.

Partition Sought.

John Stewart George has filed an action in common pleas court through his counsel, Billingsley & Moore, of Lisbon, against Robert B. George and others, praying for the partition and equitable relief in lot 571-572 in R. C. Taggart's fifth addition in East Palestine.

Bible Reading Record.

The Young People's society of the Church of the Nazarene, of Lisbon, who have been conducting a Bible reading contest, read a total of 2,406 chapters. The contest began in January, and the number of chapters so far read is declared by the Rev. G. B. Schlosser, pastor of the church, to be a record for Bible reading in this country.

County Home Inmate Dies.

John McIntire, 62 years old, former resident of New York state, died Sunday in the county home of bronchitis. He was buried Monday. This is the second death to occur at the home during the past three weeks.

There are 83 males and 38 females now in the institution.

New Gland Treatment Discovered

By a new discovery the vital gland substance may now be supplied in tablet form. This method of treatment is highly recommended by European and American scientists who have proved that the internal administration of gland extract has a very marked effect upon the corresponding glands of the human body, often regenerating them to normal activity.

Glandogen, the new scientific gland tonic, which is prepared in convenient tablet form, for men and for women, provides a simple method of taking glandular treatment. Accept no substitutes. Insist on genuine Glandogen, the original gland tonic.

Mathew's Cut Rate Store will supply you.

Warns Grange Not To Start Professional Football War

New York Club Owner Points Out Perils of Independent Venture

"Red" Will Find Player Market Pretty Low, Says Tim Mara, of Giants, Even if he Could Locate Adequate Grounds as Most Stars Will Stick to Sure Thing With Present Organization.

By Davis J. Walsh.
NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—"Red" Grange is a fine boy and a great athlete, but he has fallen into the hands of the Philistines. If he comes into New York for a professional football war, he'll lose his shirt and that magic '77 along with it. All that money he is supposed to have made this year will float right out of the window."

Tim Mara, principal backer of the New York club of the National Professional league, made this statement today. A Philistine, according to Webster, is "one not appreciating the nobler aspirations and sentiments of humanity." Webster didn't add that a Philistine was one who failed to hold a franchise in the National Professional Football league, but Mr. Mara knows that he means well.

In fact, he agreed that the hands of a Philistine might prove more kindly than those of a receiver. "And that's no joke," he added. "I didn't make enough money last year to stuff a hat brim. I remember one game where our net profits were something like $105, which was absurd compared to what the players got. Of course, we expect to do better next year, but it's a cinch the revenue won't increase to the point where there will be room for two clubs. Under those conditions, all of Jake Ruppert's money could hardly save Grange from going broke."

Mara had just returned from Detroit where he successfully opposed Grange's attempt to obtain a franchise in the league, for operation at the Yankee stadium. Grange's reply was a threat to operate here independently. Mara says he wishes him all the luck in the world because he feels that Harold will need more than that. "I can see that brand new bankroll of his melting right away," he said. "If his attempts to go it alone here, he will have the same chance of an independent running against a solid organization, to wit: none."

"If he tried to organize a rival league he will find the player market pretty low, even if he could locate adequate grounds in paying cities, which I doubt. The thing would mean the lining up of 150 players for eight clubs and I don't think there is anything like that many good ones available."

"Of course, he might get the services of a few stars. So did the Federal league in baseball and most of its backers lost plenty. The playing strength would remain with us, knowing from experience that we can meet our obligations."

"Incidentally, I'm far from alone in my stand against an invasion of New York territory. President Carr has telephoned me with the assurance that the league is behind me to a man. As for the report that Grange and his man, Pyle, might persuade the Chicago Bears to desert in a body, I am pleased to say that they told me they are with the New York Giants one hundred per cent."

CHRISTIANS WIN CAGE TILT

Defeat Lutheran Quint By Decisive Score.

The Christians swamped the Lutherans, 43 to 15, in a Sunday school league clash last night on the Odd Fellows' court. The score was 43 to 15.

The Lutherans were lacking in the team work that customarily characterized their performances, missing badly the services of R. Woessner, who was unable to play last night.

The Christians set the pace throughout, leading at the half by a 25-10 count.

The lineup: Christians, Lutherans. E. Bloor ..... F. ..... G. Woessner. Kilmer ..... F. ..... Anthony. Howard ..... C. ..... Schneidmiller. Hedleston ..... G. ..... Badgely. R. Bloor ..... G. ..... Kimes. Substitutions—Reese for E. Bloor, Owen for Kilmer, Zipperian for Schneidmiller.

Field goals—E. Bloor 2, Reese, Kilmer 6, Owen, Howard 6, Anthony 2, Kimes 3.

Fouls—Reese 2, Owen 4, Howard 5, Woessner, Anthony 2, Kimes 2.

Referee—Tinker.

Effect that Farley was due for re-election.

FARLEY TO HEAD GLOVE RULERS

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—James A. Farley, re-appointed with William Muldoon to the New York state athletic commission, was expected to be re-elected chairman today at the scheduled meeting of the board. The term of George E. Brower, third member of the commission, has another year to run. Ordinarily, the post of chairman rotates from one member to another and, in such a case, Muldoon would be in line for the position. But reports in boxing circles were to the effect that Farley was due for re-election.

Retired Business Man Dies After Illness of Three Years.

Edgar V. Lynch, 69 years old, retired business man, died last night at his home, Dunn street and Indiana avenue, following an illness of three years.

Mr. Lynch, who came here five years ago from Pittsburgh, is survived by his widow, Lourena Garrett Lynch, one brother, W. C. Lynch, Chester, and one sister, Mrs. F. C. Meckley, Manor, Pa.

He was a member of the First Presbyterian church of Chester, F. & A. M. No. 252, Olean, N. Y.; St. John's Commandery No. 54, Knights Templar, Olean N. Y., and Royal Arcanum No. 807, Scottsdale, Pa.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the home of W. C. Lynch, 1002 Neptune avenue, in charge of Rev. W. T. McKee, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and Rev. F. C. Roberts, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal church. The body will be taken to Brownsville, Pa., Thursday morning where private interment will take place.

Friends are requested to omit flowers.

SPECIAL NIGHTS
AT MEETS HERE

Large crowd attended the revival services last evening in the First Methodist Episcopal church which was observed as "Sunday School Night." Teachers, officers and members of the respective classes were present.

Epworth League members will attend the meeting tonight in a body. They will sing a song dedicated to the organization entitled "My Very Best For Jesus." Rev. R. C. Ehrhart, pastor of the church, will have as his sermon subject, "Prepare To Meet Thy God."

MEETS LAUNCHED
BY EVANGELIST

Rev. H. N. Dickerson, of Ashland, Ky., spoke last night at the revival meetings in the Church of the Nazarene. He was unable to reach the city Sunday and the opening sermon was given by Rev. Lulu Kell, pastor of the Newell Nazarene church.

The meetings will continue for several weeks with prayer services preceding the services. The Hutchinson sisters will sing at all the services.

Ten Days for Filing.

Candidates for office at the municipal election must have their petition filed not later than February 19, which is 20 days prior to the election.

It is expected that several more aspirants will announce their candidacy this week.
